Crash Victim's Birthday Wish:

I Wanted to Be Rescued Today

REDDING, Calif. (UPI) — Young Carla Corbus made a birthday wish last spring in a makeshift diary huddled with her mother in the wreckage of a light plane on a snow-laden peak. It never came true.

"Today is my 16th birthday," she printed in the diary. "I wanted to be rescued today."

That was 50 days after the March 11 crash of the plane piloted by her stepfather, Alvin Oien, 59. The poignant note was followed four days later by a final entry in the diary, on May 4:

"It's a bright and drippy, drippy day. We are completely soaked."

The diary and the skeletons

of Carla and her mother, Phyllis, were found scattered near the wreckage Sunday. No trace was found of Oien. The diary reported he had attempted to go for help.

A coroner's party set out in the rain Monday to seek Oien's remains.

The small, single-engine plane smashed into a five-foot-deep snowbank on the side of Bully Choop Mountain, 35 miles west of this northern California logging centre. The flight was from Portland, where Oien owned a hotel, to San Francisco to visit his son Alvin, Jr., 32, a Delta Airlines pilot.

The plane crashed 6,000 feet up the mountain and just over a mile from an unused dirt road — hidden under the snow.

The diary said the family saw only two days of sunshine during a spring of storms which hid the wreck from search planes. Snow was on the ground until June.

The first entry, on the day of the crash, said: "On leg of journey to Red Bluff (Calif.). Plane on left side in snowbank, 12:15 p.m. Fuselage broken. Door ajar. Windows on right side were broken as well as windshield."

The diary, with entries by both mother and daughter, then described the injuries suffered in the crash.

Al suffered a cut on the chin, three cuts on the forehead, a broken arm.

Five days after the crash, the diary said Oien left the crash scene.

"Al shouted OK. He crossed the gully. He was on his way for help."

A week later, an entry written by Mrs. Oien said: "Fear Al did not make it for help. Getting weak."

No other mention of Oien was made in the diary, kept in the back of an airman's guide in the Cessna 155.

Three days after the crash, Carla tried to walk through the snow but turned back.

"She returned because it was snowing and foggy and no visibility," the diary noted dispassionately. "Her feet were frozen and she lost her shoes."

She tried again a short time before her stepfather went for help. The diary noted the snow was "too deep and frozen."

The diary said they melted snow for water but made only one reference to food — the

Sharp Spending Cut Soon

Belt-Tightening Ahead

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Sharp will set the stage for a $1,000,000,000 cut in government spending in a belt-tightening message to Parliament Wednesday.

His speech, according to reliable sources here, will leave no doubt that, if this ruthless chopping is not enough, higher taxes will be the next step.

Chatterton

Housing Vote Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The first non-confidence motion in the minority Liberal government since the Commons resumed business a week ago will go to a vote tonight at the end of a two-day money-supply debate.

Moved Monday by Progressive-Conservative George Chatterton of Esquimalt-Saanich, the motion flays the government for raising the maximum interest rate for NHA mortgages to 8 1/2 per cent from 7 1/2 during "a national housing crisis."

As he put it forward, Finance Minister Sharp said the government will not remit the 11-per cent federal sales tax on building materials in the immediate future, because "we can't afford that."

The average wage in this

The tone will reflect serious doubts about the economy, caused by the fallout from the cost of the Vietnam war and U.S. reluctance to raise taxes to pay for it.

The consequence is higher costs and interest rates, felt in Canada and forcing the Canadian government to revise its projected spending.

During the summer, the cabinet worked out a $500,000,000 cut in government spending for the 1968-69 period.

This involved reductions in defence, postponement of the $100,000,000 "Pentagon" building, freeing of extra government money for housing, and delays in CBC capital projects.

NOT ENOUGH

But this cut turned out to be nowhere near enough.

This earlier set of cuts would have reduced the projected deficit for 1968-69 from $1,250,000,000, the largest in history, to $750,000,000, the estimated deficit this year.

When this set was complete, it became clear the U.S. situation was going to have a worse impact in Canada than expected.

The U.S. Congress was dragging its feet on tax increases demanded by President Johnson. And there was no sign of improvement in the Vietnam situation, no easing in the inflationary pressures on the U.S. economy.

SECOND ROUND

"We knew then we had to have a second round of cutting," an official said Monday night.

Sharp will announce specific measures that will be chopping. He will not touch medicare, which is scheduled to begin July 1 next year.

However, medicare is in the lap of the provinces. The federal government has only passed enabling legislation to help the provinces operate plans.

His speech may be interpreted by the provinces as an invitation to delay its introduction.

The second round of cuts would trim the deficit to between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000.

This would mean a balance in the government's "national" accounts.

This is the picture when the government includes money it has on hand from the old age security fund, the Canada pension plan, superannuation funds and other items not included in the budget.

Government sources pointed out it is not certain if ways can be found to reduce spending another $500,000,000.

St. Louis Series Favorite

BOSTON (AP) — Bookmakers Monday made St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 favorites and Boston Red Sox 7-5 underdogs for baseball's world series, which opens here at 10 a.m. EST Wednesday.

Starting pitchers will be St. Louis ace Bob Gibson, who won 13 and lost seven in the National League despite six weeks off with a broken leg, and Boston's Jose Santiago, 12-4. See also Page 10.

Island Plan Uneconomic?

NEW COLLEGE IN JEOPARDY

By IAN STREET

A Vancouver Island regional college, without three school districts which opted out in last Saturday's vote, may not be a viable economic project, Education Minister Peterson indicated Monday.

The minister said he was disappointed three of the nine districts involved voted against participating in the project. He added education department officials will meet shortly with backers of the regional college scheme to discuss the next move. (See also Page 28.)

MORE INFORMATION

Mr. Peterson was asked whether the government was anxious to see the project proceed as quickly as possible.

He replied he wanted further information, which would only be forthcoming at the proposed meeting with college supporters, before offering any encouragement "one way or the other."

Reporters then asked the minister if he had doubts about the success of the project as a result of Saturday's vote.

CHANGE IN SIZE

Mr. Peterson said: "I'm talking about the change in size of the area to be served. It has been reduced by the opting out of three districts and we want to know the full effect of this, whether it will still allow a viable, economic regional college."

The questions of how long it will take to get a college into operation, supposing it is found to be still viable, and whether the site should be shifted as a result of the vote are really up to the people of the area to decide, he said.

FINAL SAY

Local authorities must draw up plans and arrange a referendum to approve the necessary funds for building of a college. But the council of public instruction, which is the provincial cabinet, has the final say in whether the college goes ahead. It came as a shock, Mr. Peterson indicated, that Courtenay turned down participation in the college. He said Alberni and Northern Vancouver Island had been expected to vote no.

JUST AS EASY

Island North, he said, is out of commuting distance with the proposed site of the new college. Therefore it is just as easy for residents there to attend existing facilities in Vancouver or Victoria.

The people of Alberni also have made it clear in the past they objected to the proposed location of the regional college, Mr. Peterson added.

Yugoslavs Hold Eichmann Aide

THE HAGUE (UPI) — An aide to Adolf Eichmann who had been safe in Austria because of his Austrian citizenship was arrested Monday in Yugoslavia and may be sent to The Netherlands to answer war crimes charges.

The Netherlands justice ministry said it had been advised from Belgrade that Erich Rajakovic, 62, had been detained in connection with a Dutch request for extradition under an agreement with Yugoslavia.

Rajakovic is wanted on charges of helping Eichmann round up Dutch Jews for Nazi gas chambers. There was no indication why Rajakovic left Austria, where he was safe from extradition.

He served 30 months from 1963 to 1965 for an Austrian war crimes conviction and Jewish groups had been watching since then to see if he would leave Austria.

Army-Ousted Leader Arrested in Greece

ATHENS (Reuters) — The army-led Greek government Monday placed under house arrest Panayotis Canellopoulos, 64, the premier toppled by the army coup last April, who twice last week defied an order banning public statements. Canellopoulos said the regime must restore political freedom quickly and its members must "rid the country of their presence" or Greece will be exposed to dangers that might destroy everything.

Royal Navy Not Quite Sure

LONDON (CP) — Canada is reported to be designing a new generation of submarine detection electronics in the hope of landing a big new contract with the Royal Navy but an informant said Monday stiff competition appears to be developing from the United States.

HMCS Chaudiere sailed from Halifax Monday bound for the west coast where it will undergo conversion to the equipment mentioned in this article. HMCS Columbia, already here, and another unnamed Restigouche class destroyer are slated for the same conversion.

tract with the Royal Navy but an informant said Monday stiff competition appears to be developing from the United States.

He suggested, however, that a decision on the competing designs is still about a year away. The Royal Navy said it is fitting at least 15 of its frigates with existing Canadian equipment known as variable depth sonar but still hasn't made up its mind on equipment for another 11.

A navy spokesman estimated the cost of the sonar for each ship at about $750,000. He said the navy is confident some "logistics difficulties" in fitting the equipment can be overcome with the establishment of production and repair facilities in Britain.

The Sunday Telegraph said the sonar, to help a ship detect submarines sheltering under warm water which repels signals sent out by ordinary detectors, showed "indifferent performance" and that an alternative sonar was planned.

A Canadian official here said the report was inaccurate; that the equipment, produced by a Canadian subsidiary of the British EMI Company at Dartmouth, N.S., was the best available.

However, an informant added that a new generation of sonar is under design at Dartmouth and the Royal Navy also is looking at a competitive U.S. design. Costs as well as performance would affect the decision.

Burton Gives Liz Flying Elizabeth

PORTO CONTE, Sardinia (AP) — Actor Richard Burton gave actress-wife Elizabeth Taylor a little surprise gift Monday — a $1,000,000, 10-passenger jet plane that he named Elizabeth. The twin-engine plane joins two Rolls Royces and a 110-foot ocean-going yacht in the Burtons' private transport fleet.

day Oien left. It said simply: "one glass of jelly left."

Many entries only reported the weather—two days of sunshine and the rest snowy and rainy. The diary also referred to attempts to keep the interior of the wreckage warm by putting canvas and other materials over the broken windows.

"The flap keeps blowing off," wrote Carla.

The wreckage was spotted by Floyd Bolling, a Shasta, Calif., lumber mill worker. He and his wife Hilda, were scanning the hillsides in the Trinity Mountains for deer when he "saw something that didn't look right."

Missing Pair Rescued In Arctic

EDMONTON (CP) — Some Eskimo mukluks and SARAH equipment were credited Monday with saving the lives of two men lost in the Arctic.

Cedric Mah, 45, a pilot with Gateway Aviation of Edmonton and his passenger Pat Parker, 26, Yellowknife, N.W.T., were found Sunday by an RCAF air rescue plane about 100 miles southwest of Cambridge Bay, N.W.T.

"I've just had a luxurious bath and we're feeling 1000 per cent," said Mr. Mah after he arrived in Yellowknife Sunday night.

A boat-equipped aircraft, piloted by Willie Lesterch landed about 90 minutes after the pair was sighted Sunday by the crew of an RCAF Hercules aircraft, and flew them to Yellowknife.

Mah's plane was reported missing Sept. 24 after failing to reach Yellowknife.

Mr. Parker, a geologist with International Mining Services Ltd., and Mr. Mah were on a mineral claim staking mission through the north when they were forced to land on a small lake near the widening of the James River on Sept. 21.

"Pat tried to balance the craft while I started the engine. Then we beached the craft on the ice and secured the plane with a rope."

The weight however, tipped the plane's tail assembly into the lake, shattering the aircraft's communications, except for the self-contained SARAH search and rescue detector.

Mr. Mah said they were able to "dig out four sleeping bags, from the baggage section of the plane."

Mr. Mah had also picked up some Eskimo mukluks at Chimo Bay for a girl in Yellowknife and "they saved our legs."

Feeding Baby No Problem

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I am expecting my first baby soon and thinking about breast feeding, but am deeply concerned about one thing:

What does a mother do when she has to go out somewhere where she can't take the baby with her? Is it possible to bottle feed at such a time?

My husband doesn't like the idea of breast feeding because he says it's too inconvenient. My mother says they don't breast feed any more like they did years ago—Mrs. M.H.

And just where might you be going that you could give the baby a bottle but couldn't breast feed him?

If you are at a friend's house for some hours, the baby ought to be off in another room by himself anyway for nap time, so I see no reason why feeding should be any problem.

Breast feeding, while doubt-be dangerous? I have one which hurts depending on which shoe I wear. The doctor told me to soak the foot every day in plain water. Will this help it? Is there any chance it should be removed?—Mrs. L.D.

Infection is always the hazard of this kind of nail, and the nail may be so shaped that even slight pressure can break the skin and lead to infection.

Such nails can be removed if necessary, but if there is a good prospect of getting the nail to grow out properly by simpler means, that usually is tried first.

Soaking helps. Many times tiny tufts of cotton can be tucked under the nail to guide it out into its proper course.

After it grows out, the nail should be cut straight across, but curved. Depending on the shape of the nail, it may be necessary to remove part of the nail.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can I grow toenails, if not infected, country is $5,000 a year," said Mr. Chatterton, "but to qualify for NHA a man would need an income of something like $8,000.

"Canadians aren't going to be able to afford houses."

The government, said Mr. Chatterton, has said it is going to concentrate its efforts in the field of public housing.

"The report of the Senate committee on the aging indicated that 300,000 elderly people need public housing, and yet in the whole of 1966 only 6,000 housing units were built, and in the first six months of this year less than 1,200 units were provided for these people."

The Canadian working man is going to be caught in the middle in the housing field, said Mr. Chatterton.

He won't be in the low-income group to qualify for public housing if it is available, and he won't have enough money to qualify for mortgage money.

POLICY BLAMED

Mr. Chatterton said the policies of the government, mainly by virtue of its profligate spending, has largely contributed to the shortage of money for housing.

The government, because of its tremendous deficit, is forced to compete in the money market, because of this competition the increased rate, said Mr. Chatterton, will be felt, not only by individual home builders, but will be felt in a general interest rate increase which will be passed on to renters.

COSTS WILL RISE

"The cost of housing will go up, and rents will go up too," he said.

Mrs. Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver Kingsway) said she welcomed the Conservative motion which expressed her party's views on the matter.

The government lacked the will to deal with the housing crisis on a priority basis, although thousands of Candians desperate for homes considered it a serious situation demanding action.

Robert Thompson (3C—Red Deer) called the 84-per-cent interest rate a "terrible, iniquitous aspect of the present housing policy" and said Canada's approach to finding capital for financing housing construction is far behind what is being done in other countries.

30 Years 'Retarded' Patient's IQ 135

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI)—A man with an Intelligence Quotient of 135 has been a patient at Idaho's state school and hospital for the mentally retarded for 30 years.

Dr. John Marks, school superintendent, disclosed the unidentified man was admitted as an infant when his parents thought him retarded. Marks said a recent stepped-up testing program showed the man was not mentally retarded—only deaf.

"He spends his time studying and doing calculus problems in his mind, as he has for years, and nobody knew it," Marks said.

Despite the man's high IQ, Marks said 30 years in an institution has left the patient "socially inadequate" to cope with outside situations.

Marks said the patient will continue to stay at the school for a while, but will receive special training to prepare him for work outside.

Turkey May Mine Russian Border

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has indicated he may support a Turkish proposal to seed atomic demolition mines along Turkey's frontier with the Soviet Union.

Defence Minister Ahmet Ferozkulu of Turkey suggested the plan last week at the NATO nuclear planning meeting.

The idea would be to create a sort of atomic barrier along the Turkish-Soviet boundary to thwart any Russian invasion of Turkey.

McNamara, returning from the Ankara meeting Monday, told reporters:

"Of course, that could not be considered provocative because these atomic demolition charges are placed in the ground—under the ground along the border—and could be used only for defence and not for offensive purposes."

cast for 11 presidential tickets, 10 of them civilian.

Dzu led five other civilian opponents of Thieu in bringing charges before the assembly of vote fraud on the part of the military regime. Saigon students and militants "Buddhists" joined in the opposition protest, resulting in street demonstrations during the three days the assembly deliberated on the election returns.

CLEAR VICTORY

The assembly action seemed another clear political victory for Thieu and his running mate, Nguyen Cao Ky, an air force marshal. In the present military regime, Ky is premier and Thieu chief of state. In their new posts as president and vice-president they will give up their military commissions.

Even though the assembly considered the votes of 2,724 polling places to be void, the original official returns—with Thieu winning by 35 per cent of the vote—will stand. The assembly's compilation of irregularities was carried out only to reach a decision on whether to confirm the election. In effect, what the assembly said was that the irregularities did not warrant calling a new election.

The assembly was interested only in seeing whether there would have been another winner if there had been no irregularities.

The new government soon will be completed. The election of 60 senators to fill the upper house of a two-house legislature was validated Sept. 18. The 137-member House of Representatives is to be elected Oct. 22.

Beulah's Victims Brace for Fern

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP)—Hurricane Fern, a small storm in the track of Hurricane Beulah, bore down on the storm-wracked lower Texas coast and northwestern Mexico Monday.

Even a glancing blow from Fern's winds and rains could be disastrous, officials said.

Hurricane Beulah hit at Brownsville, Tex., 13 days ago with 180-mile-an-hour winds.

The worst effects of the storm, however, came from massive flooding across a 40,000-square-mile area of South Texas.

LEVEE REPAIRS

Almost every Gulf of Mexico hurricane, like Fern, brings heavy rains, and weather-worn South Texans could suffer another disastrous blow.

Crews were trying to shore up damaged levees before Fern could strike.

At mid-afternoon, the weather bureau said Fern was "an extremely small hurricane" and was moving toward the Mexican Coast.

Small-craft warnings already had gone up for storm-hit Port Isabel and Brownsville. The weather bureau warned that Fern's gale winds could cause high tides during the night on the Gulf of Mexico side of Padre Island, once-glittering resort and fishing centre laid in ruins by Beulah.

Residents of the Lower Rio Grande Valley, victims of almost two weeks of storm fury, turned their attentions from cleaning up their homes and possessions to battling down for another storm.

Thousands of persons continued to live in Red Cross shelters in the valley.

Mao's Masterpiece

THERE WAS SOMETHING more than reverence in the chanting ovation given Mao Tse-tung, chairman of the Chinese Communist Party, at the massive rally in Peking which marked the 18th anniversary of his assumption of power following the defeat of the Nationalist forces of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek.

There was hysteria in the breaking voice of the announcer as he screamed, "Chairman Mao is coming... Chairman Mao is at the rostrum." And then: "Chairman Mao, oh dear Chairman Mao, it is under your leadership that our nation is so strong."

There was more of that sort of thing, with the well stage-managed masses roaring responses, and Defence Minister Lin Pao, the man believed to have been chosen by Chairman Mao to succeed him, hailing him as "the greatest genius of our time."

The theme of the rally was in the declaration that China today is "the centre of world revolution." But even of that dubious distinction there is some doubt since Peking must share with the militant Cuban dictator, Fidel Castro, whatever prestige attaches to such a claim.

The fact is that China's influence abroad is at an all-time low. Such insignificant states as Albania pay lip service to the Chinese revolutionary ideal and there are a few self-seeking new African states willing to accept Peking's assistance in the name of revolution. But her true friends are scarce as her legendary dragons.

China had attained a very considerable prestige among the Asian nations until her own internal convulsions and frustrations drove her to political excesses. Only Pakistan, because of fear of India, and North Vietnam, because it has no alternative, have left the diplomatic doors open to Peking. Burma and Cambodia, once her friends, have broken off relations. Indonesia, an ally under the ousted Achmed Sukarno, has recalled her ambassador and last week a Jakarta mob sacked the Chinese embassy and manhandled the staff. Ceylon and Japan are in dispute with Mao's government, and Indian troops are intermittently engaged with the Chinese forces which overrun Tibet.

Malaysia and Singapore have turned their backs, and in Outer Mongolia it is Russia that wields the influence once Peking's. Russia, indeed, so long a revolutionary friend and helpmeet, is now attacked as China's enemy, second only to the United States in order of anathema.

If it took Chairman Mao's genius to bring China to this state of isolation, diplomatic disgrace and wordy aggressiveness it will take a far greater one to bring that people back to a state of comity among the nations her ancient culture should prescribe.

Roblin's Decision

MANITOBA PREMIER ROBLIN'S decision to enter the federal field of politics will be greeted enthusiastically by all those who look to a regenerated and united Progressive Conservative party to form the next government in the hope that it can provide the leadership so long denied this nation under its present administration.

Mr. Roblin's public announcement that he is now determined to join forces with Premier Stanfield and seek a federal seat should be sufficient to dispel the persistent rumors that the national Conservative party still remains a divided force.

The Manitoba premier, who lost out to Mr. Stanfield in the Tory leadership race last month by a remarkably narrow margin, will be an invaluable acquisition to the party. He will not only bring to it his youth, vigor and ability but a solid segment of Western Canadian support.

In the words of his new leader, Mr. Roblin "has already achieved a position of great distinction in Western Canada and, indeed, a great reputation across Canada." With such enviable qualifications it is not difficult to predict that Duff Roblin will soon be playing a leading and vital role in national affairs.

The Nuclear Race

EVEN THE LIGHT anti-missile protection that the Soviet Union reportedly has so far installed to guard one or two of its biggest cities, and that the United States has now decided to deploy principally in case Communist China should ever mount an insane attack, is having the predictable effect. From U.S. defence department sources comes authoritative word that most American single-bomb nuclear missiles will be converted in five years to many-headed weapons, capable of splitting up and hitting several targets at once; that the current force of 1,710 missiles will carry 7,500 warheads. And there is not the slightest reason for doubt that the Soviet capability will be increased in the same proportion.

Here again is the "nuclear action-reaction phenomenon" to which U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara referred in his speech announcing the "thin" defensive system, and particularly in maintaining his opposition to the heavy system sought by the military.

This, he said, was "the phenomenon that fuels on the arms race." And it was futile for the United States and the U.S.S.R. each to spend "four billion dollars, 40 billion, or 400 billion dollars—and at the end of the spending, and at the end of all the deployment, and at the end of all the effort, to be relatively at the same point of balance on the security scale that we are now."

The point where they are now, by Mr. McNamara's estimate, is that neither could deliver a first-strike blow against the other that would prevent retaliation, and that each could deliver a retaliatory blow sufficient to destroy the other. Nor does he anticipate a change in this situation in the future.

In this framework the arms race between the two giants can be seen as indeed futile. But perhaps there is hope that a new round of spending on both sides will have the effect of making the Russians more responsive than they have been to American proposals for talks aimed at a strategic arms limitation agreement, whereby the prohibitive balance would be maintained by a mutual reduction instead of a build-up of weapons.

For they no less than Mr. McNamara's American audience must be aware of the truth of his words: "However foolish unlimited war may have been in the past, it is now no longer merely foolish, but suicidal at well."

"Sorry, hon, the World Series is on for two weeks, and then there's the NFL, AFL, and NHL... I'll try to rake up the leaves between the Grey Cup and the Rose Bowl..."

The Passing of the Anglo-Indians

By C. P. RAMACHANDRAN from New Delhi

"We shall be destroyed," said Frank Anthony when asked the other day what would happen to his community when the government of India carried out its declared policy of replacing English with regional languages. Frank Anthony is an Anglo-Indian member of India's parliament. His community used to be called Eurasians.

The first people of Indo-European descent in India appeared in Mangalore and Goa, where the Portuguese landed in 1498. Vasco da Gama, who led the first batch to Calicut, thought the local people were Christians and he offered worship at a temple of Kali, at first in the belief that the statue of the goddess of destruction was of Mary. This did not change the Portuguese policy of favoring mixed marriages. Albuquerque, the celebrated Portuguese governor of Goa, offered money to Portuguese soldiers who married local girls. His purpose was to create a generation of people loyal to the regime.

French policy in India was ambiguous, but French officers took Indian mistresses, and even contracted some kind of civil marriage — if the girl came from reigning nobility. The Comte de Bologne and General Perron, who served Moulmein as Hindu chiefs, kept concubines in the fashion of the day. An Armenian, Gregory, known in the court of Oudh where he served as Gorgin Khan, kept a full harem.

Among European freebooters who married Indians the most flamboyant character was Walter Reinhard, a German known in India as General Sombre. When he was 40 he married a daughter of 13, Zebunnissa; and in time she ran the administration of districts of India given to Reinhard by the Mahrattas. A great-grandson, David Dyer Sombre, became a member of the British House of Commons in 1841.

One young and handsome servant of the British East India Company took the fancy of the Queen of Attigal (Tiruvannamalai) and she proposed marriage with the offer of a shared throne. According to Hutchinson's New Account, the young man "modestly refused so great an honor."

"However, to please Her Majesty, he treated her with the same civility as Solomon did the Queen of Ethiopia, or Alexander the Great did the Amazonian Queen, and satisfied her so well that she made him some presents..."

The offspring of this union later ascended his mother's throne as maharajah. He was a noted musician and some of his compositions are still sung. But the man who really created the Anglo-Indian community was the ordinary British soldier, doing his duty till the noon sun put an end to military exercises for the day and while away his free time away from barracks with the girls of the bazaar. By the end of the 19th century there was a substantial number of Anglo-Indians in most of the garrison towns and cities of India.

The creation of the Eurasian community bred misery in diverse ways. Many British soldiers had deep affection for their Indian "wives," and gave them money out of their meagre pay when they left India for ever and returned to England at the end of their service. The army itself often discreetly provided for many families whose fathers had boarded the homeward-bound troopers at Bombay.

But the saddest did not end there. Dennis Kincaid has described the predicament of the Anglo-Indians. They were as painfully aware of their color as of their whiter neighbors' disdain, which they — hating as they did all even darker than themselves with pathological ferocity — could not but acknowledge in their heart of hearts to be justified. They bowed, giggled and whined their way past the True Whites.

With this warning to the white, the Anglo-Indian girl would set her heart on marrying an Englishman. But her chances were always limited. The officer class was barred to her ambition — often by the color-conscious regiment itself. Be her appearance never so white, the old British Indian Army colonel would swear he could always detect what he called "a touch of the tarbrush." He was rarely mistaken, and the amorous subaltern was not left in any doubt about what was expected of him. In the 1920s Rudyard Kipling was warning the young British officers against the snares set by Anglo-Indian girls.

On the other hand, the Anglo-Indian girl was used to a higher standard of living than the British private. For her family had servants, who in poverty-stricken India could be had for pence a day, whereas he, back home in England, had been Mum's only help with the washing-up. He was white — but he was rough.

Between the smouldering of the officers' quarters and the feral smell of British soldiery there was only the restricted ranks of warrant officers — sergeants and above — within which the Anglo-Indian girl had a thousand-to-one chance of marriage and happiness.

At the time of the British departure from India in 1947 there were about half-a-million Anglo-Indians. They ran the railways of India, built their modest chis, played whist, and referred to England — which few of them had seen or could hope to see — as "home."

There are about 250,000 left now — mostly concentrated in the coastal cities of Calcutta, Bombay and Madras, and old British-Indian Army centres like Bangalore, Jubbalpur, Lucknow and Kanpur. In the millions of Indian villages there are no Anglo-Indians. Their clubs are no longer exclusive to their community, and the evening's entertainment is no longer confined to whist, billiards and bingo. Many of their younger women have abandoned Western frocks and skirts for the sarwar and kameez of the Punjab, or the all-enveloping sari.

The Anglo-Indian skills were commonly thought of by the British as mainly clerical, so it came as a bit of a shock to sovereign India that many of the awards for gallantry in the Indo-Pakistan war of 1962 went to Anglo-Indians. About 20 per cent of group-captains, and 30 per cent of squadron-leaders in the Indian Air Force are Anglo-Indians. Two Anglo-Indian senior officers, General Henderson Brooks and General P. O. Dunn had distinguished careers. Others have done well in business and the professions.

The community's numbers have diminished since 1947 mainly, of course, because they could maintain a separate identity only so long as there were two main races in India. With the departure of the British it was only a matter of time before the community began to be submerged. Many Anglo-Indians — especially those who could easily pass as true Europeans — have left India for England and other parts of the Commonwealth, notably Australia.

With them are disappearing from the Indian scene the complex of hockey clubs, railway institutes, police and sergeants' messes, the rice-and-mutton-ball curry lunches. With them will perish all the unfulfilled dreams of "home." Language laws can be only a hastener of what Frank Anthony, a Viceroy's Gold Medalist in England, sees when he says, "We shall be destroyed."

Washington Calling

Steadily Up the Escalator

By MARQUIS CHILDS

SEN. Everett McKinley Dirksen and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California have more in common than meets the eye. They both come out of a homespun Midwest background and they make the homespun virtues their political stock in trade.

It is against the background of his homespun alma mater, Eureka College, that Reagan makes his first national appearance with the 1968 presidential campaign in the not-too-distant future. His sponsor and introducer is fittingly the senior senator from Illinois whose reputation as a performer is rapidly overtaking that of Reagan, the actor turned politician.

Along with the homely, Midwest facade both men have close ties with great wealth and the power that wealth generates. Reagan in his race for governor last year had the backing of the independent oil operators in California and others in the big money in that state which has become the most populous in the Union. As a paid lecturer for General Electric shortly before he entered politics he toured the country with a patriotic talk on the virtues of free enterprise.

It is this pattern of success that Reagan and Dirksen celebrate. Again and again Reagan's words document a new kind of Horatio Alger story — the poor but proud young man who learns how to unite wealth with politics. "I suggest to you," he says, "there is no left or right, only an up or down. Up to the maximum of individualism, and down to the minimum of totalitarianism."

Both the florid senator and the folksy governor have moved steadily up the up escalator. Here in Dirksen's home ballroom the interplay between big business and politics is spelled out in a formula that more and more members of Congress have made their own.

On the door of the most influential law firm in Peoria — Davis, Morgan & Witherill —

Dirksen's name appears as counsel. He refers cases to the firm and is paid for it. The same formula, with some extra overtones, as employed by Sen. Edward Long (D., Mo.), is now under investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee. As was shown in an exchange with reporters during one of his speeches in the Senate press gallery this past summer, Dirksen resents questions about his income from this source.

"Is that anyone's business but my own?" he said in reply to a question about how much his fees amounted to over a year. "I don't bring in any federal business. There is no conflict of interest."

A persistent reporter pointed out that since Dirksen holds the powerful position of minority leader in the Senate, any fees he receives from a law firm, whether from government or private business, could be considered a conflict of interest.

"Next you'll want to know how much I make from my recordings," the senator said, losing his famous cool, "and I'll say that's none of your business." Finally, in response to one more persistent question about his legal earnings:

"Say it's between 50 cents and $5,000,000. You're prying into my personal business."

Not long after this exchange President Johnson appointed Robert B. Morgan, senior partner in the Dirksen law firm and a former mayor of Peoria, to be a federal judge in the Southern District of Illinois. One more sign of the tie between Dirksen and the president, this seemed to bring to full circle the cozy relationship between politics and influence.

Again and again, as in the instance of helping to quash an investigation into prices charged for drugs by the big pharmaceutical manufacturers, the senator has befriended powerful interests. But if this is resented by the home folks it doesn't show up in the ballot box.

Dirksen was re-elected to a third term five years ago by a generous majority, and up for a fourth term in 1968 he is considered a certain winner.

Here on his home ground, where the big distillers are the powerhouses, Dirksen can reply to his critics with a variant of that fine old Americanism, "If you're so smart why ain't you rich?" "If you're so smart why ain't you a senator and minority leader?" In the American conviction success resolves all doubts.

The Dirksen-Reagan partnership is a natural, two homespun boys who have made good and yet have never lost the homespun touch. How much beyond the historic night at Eureka College the partnership will last is another matter. If Reagan should move up in the presidential sweepstakes, with the mark of success clearly evident, their rendezvous at Eureka could be a forecast of the Republican future.

Communist China

Continually Cautious

By EDWARD NEILAN from Hong Kong

DESPITE a steady campaign of violence against foreign diplomatic establishments inside Red China, Peking's military posture to the outside world has been continually cautious.

In fact, diplomatic analysts here point out, the recent shooting in the Nathu La Pass facing the strategic Chumbi Valley on the Sikkim-China border is the only real "adventure" the Red Chinese have been involved in since the cultural revolution began. The one other exception might be the Sino-Soviet border. There have been various reports, so far unconfirmed, of several clashes between Chinese and Soviet border guards at various places along their lengthy border.

But these skirmishes, as may have been the case on the Sikkim border, are believed to be the result of tense local situations and not part of any master plan of invasion.

Diplomatic analysts tend to view the fighting along the Sikkim-China border as part of the long-standing Chinese plan to sweep the Himalayan buffer states away from India.

There were one or two brief flurries of machinegun fire across the Hong Kong border earlier this year but this is considered an "incident" rather than a planned "adventure." Most observers here tend to regard the Hong Kong border disturbances as concocted by frustrated Hong Kong Communists rather than carried out on Peking's instructions.

So far, Red China's 2.5 million man armed forces show no stance anywhere that would suggest an invasion is imminent.

The only place where movement of troops suggests anything of the kind is opposite Sikkim. Difficult terrain and the approaching winter snows will limit any fighting in these 14,000-foot-high passes.

Communist China has been particularly wary about committing any land forces to the Vietnam war.

There are believed to be about 40,000 Red Chinese in North Vietnam guarding and rebuilding strategic railways, bridges and roads.

It is quite likely that some Chinese have been killed in American air strikes on these targets. But Peking has chosen not to make any claims of casualties inside North Vietnam.

The only Chinese combat participation in the war that gets in the papers is the occasional shooting down of an American plane that strays over Red China. The Chinese also have become more adept at shooting down American pilotless drone reconnaissance aircraft.

Red China's sharpest military posture is undoubtedly opposite Quemoy and Matsu. The confrontation with Taiwan is at the core of Peking's political policy. There are estimated to be almost one million of Red China's military forces serving on the firing line or in logistic roles along the coast opposite Taiwan.

Stirring up of foreign military adventures is always suggested by commentators as a means Peking employs to divert attention from troubles at home.

In reality, this seems untrue. The fighting along the Sikkim border recently was given very little publicity in the official Chinese press. There were no massive demonstrations against the Indian Embassy in Peking. The absence of any conventional military "adventures" abroad does not, however, mean that Chairman Mao's men have been completely idle.

Mao's emphasis, after all, is on people's wars. After the 1965 setback in Indonesia, Peking's subversive agents have been active elsewhere.

Insurgency operations are being fed with active Red Chinese leadership and equipment support in the Naxalbari-Siliguri region of India. There are also active Red Chinese-backed operations in Burma, Thailand, and Cambodia.

In the remote northern Laotian province of Phong Saly, Red China has actually encroached on part of Laotian territory, building roads that are meant to serve Red China, not Laos.

In sum, Red China's conventional military forces are being used cautiously, and primarily for defence. Since the Korean War, Red Chinese armies have advanced in large scale only against India in 1962 and 1965.

The Indian front (India provides defence and foreign affairs advice to Sikkim by treaty) is the most likely locale of any new conventional attacks.

Red Chinese military activity inside China's borders continues to be subordinated to political goals and used in concert with subversive and propaganda offensives.

Single Command Out

By WILLIAM TUOHY from Saigon

AS the South Vietnamese army's performance has come increasingly under fire by its critics, suggestions have been raised that the U.S. military should take over direct command of all allied armed forces in Vietnam.

Commentators and observers, civilian and military alike, point to the United Nations command in South Korea as an example of the command relationship that might be devised in South Vietnam under U.S. Gen. William C. Westmoreland.

But however logical would be a single chain of command involving Vietnamese, U.S., Korean, Philippines, Australian and New Zealand forces fighting here, it is not now likely to be created. Given the arguments for and against such a command, the United States has decided to stick with the status quo. This, according to the highest sources here, is a decision that has been concurred in both by the military command here and in the Pentagon.

While seemingly similar, there are key differences between the command and governmental relationship that existed in South Korea and the situation in Vietnam.

In the first place, in 1950 when the North Korean army overran most of South Korea, effective government collapsed, leaving a near vacuum in leadership.

Secondly, the United Nations Security Council moved quickly to back up the United States decision to intervene. And when the first U.S. troops arrived on the chaotic scene, they immediately took over command function and, in effect, ran the show from the beginning.

But in South Vietnam, the government never ceased functioning — however ineptly or ineffectively in popular legitimacy. The United States has never been in a position to step into a political power vacuum.

Additionally, the United Nations has played no role in Vietnam, thus it is impossible to lump all the forces involved under the UN's protective command umbrella.

Because of the existence of a recently elected government, and a Vietnamese army with 10 infantry divisions, one airborne division, armor elements, a marine brigade, the Americans would find it exceedingly difficult — if not impossible — to get the Vietnamese leaders to submit to an over-all U.S. command.

There is also a military consideration that weighs against the United States taking over command. This is the fact that some of the best Vietnamese commanders would be deeply resent such a move, morale would probably suffer, and over-all effectiveness would decrease at least.

Most U.S. senior officers believe that on paper a single unified command with an American general at the top would be more efficient for fighting the war. But because of the aforementioned political and military considerations, the highest U.S. officials here have decided against pressing for a single command.

Instead, they are convinced that the current command relationship is about the most effective that can be devised under existing circumstances. This means that the Vietnamese army run its own show, except where a unit is operating next to U.S. or Korean forces and may temporarily come under the "Oponon," or operational control, of a U.S. task force commander. This is what is meant by "co-ordinated command."

If U.S. headquarters is reluctant to impose a U.S. command for what it considers valid reasons, there is a critical area where the U.S. seems to have been dragging its heels. This is the military advisory effort, which has been inserted into the Vietnamese army from the battalion level up to Gen. Westmoreland himself.

Basically, critics charge, the United States should exert more muscle and authority to ensure better performance of the Vietnamese army. They should be able to criticize and demand replacement for unit commanders who are incompetent or corrupt. And they should have some kind of say-so in the appointment of senior Vietnamese field commanders.

By getting tough in this area, the U.S. army advisers could avoid the drawbacks of taking over command. Yet by withholding helicopters on the local level and personal intervention by Gen. Westmoreland on the senior level they could generate the responsiveness from the Vietnamese army needed to win the war.

For without a substantial improvement in the calibre of the Vietnamese army, U.S. combat forces and their allies will be forced to carry an increasing and disproportionate share of the job of fighting and pacification in Vietnam.

Waste Harnessed

Israel Reaps Dividend Of More Water

By DAVID LARSEN, from Aalmine, Occupied Syria

The bulldozers and steam shovels are hard at work along the River Jordan, as Israel reaps yet another benefit of the Arab folly in June.

In this instance the dividend is water, a precious commodity in the Middle East. Little did Israel ever expect that its half-empty glass would be filled to overflowing because of a war.

When the rains come this winter, no longer will the valuable water overflow the banks of the Jordan north of the Sea of Galilee and go to waste while flooding parts of the Huleh valley.

With no Syrian guns to hamper them, the Israelis are widening and deepening the channel for about four miles south of the bridge of Jacob's Daughters.

The banks are being widened approximately 150 feet. The deepening is actually a long overdue clearing of the bed, something the Jews have been yearning to do for years. It isn't a usurpation. It will simply permit them to accept the full allotment of water to which they were entitled under the Johnston plan. It could increase available fresh water by a third.

The water situation for Syria, Jordan and Israel is this: All rely on the Jordan to some extent, sometimes heavily. The river is fed by three major sources — the Hashbani River (rising in Lebanon), the Dan River (rising in Israel), and the Benias River (rising in Syria). These merge within Israel.

An additional source — but one which joins the Jordan below the Sea of Galilee — is the Yarmuk River, which rises in Syria.

In order to develop and conserve the water, a regional plan was formulated to provide an equitable apportionment among the Arab states and Israel. It was called the work of Eriv Johnston, former U.S. chamber of commerce president and a special envoy of President Eisenhower. The plan distributed 60 per cent of the water to the Arabs, 40 per cent to the Jews. Nobody in Israel did hand-springs over this, but the government expressed in 1955 its willingness to ratify the proposal. The Arab governments accepted the plan on a technical level, but the Arab League, meeting later that year in Cairo, withheld approval on the grounds that it would mean co-operation with Israel.

But irrigation projects couldn't wait. Israel went ahead with construction of the national water carrier to transport water to the south. Jordan completed construction of the East Ghor canal, tapping into the Yarmuk as provided in the Johnston plan.

The Johnston plan envisioned a billion cubic meters of water being available each year for the countries.

Forty per cent of this for Israel would have meant 400,000,000 cubic meters. Roughly 80,000,000 is taken annually above the Sea of Galilee, which should leave 320,000,000 to be taken from the Sea of Galilee. The sea is the principal storage reservoir, permitting retention of water through the dry seasons.

But because of the high salinity of the lake, Israel has been able to use only about 220,000,000 cubic meters.

What the widening and deepening of the Jordan means is that its flow will be increased into the lake diluting the salinity content and permitting Israel probably to use its full allotment of 320,000,000 cubic meters.

The national carrier takes the water out at the northwestern part of the sea and pumps it into the Negev desert to an area 45 miles south of Beersheba.

There is still another benefit to be derived from the enlargement of the bed of the Jordan near this town — productivity of crops in Israel's nearby fertile Huleh valley will greatly increase.

Twelve years ago the valley was a mosquito-infested swamp. A reclamation project resulted in drainage of 12,000 acres. Only half of this acreage, however, has been planted for year-round crops. The balance was subject to winter flooding. And that now is apparently a thing of the past.

British Magazine Looks at Canada

Pearson to Quit This Year?

CP, from London

The Economist says Prime Minister Pearson likely will step down by the end of this year but predicts that if External Affairs Minister Paul Martin succeeds him, "the Liberals will deserve defeat."

These remarks are included in a 40-page report on Canada's centenary, written by contributing editor Roland Bird, 59, and forming a major part of the weekly magazine's current edition. Bird, a specialist on Canada, has made a number of on-the-spot Canadian surveys.

The report suggests, among other things, that Canada's national identity is impossible to define and that part of its moral code is antediluvian but concludes that with continuing good luck the next 100 years should work out "splendidly." Touching on political affairs, Bird says of Pearson: "He has been happy, for the first of many gruelling years, in the House of Commons, no longer attacked by those butterflies in the tummy as he gets to his feet."

"He has got most of his program through in four years with a minority government. He could not stand the thought of leading the Liberals into another election.

CURRENT EVENTS

By MARVIN D. LIPTON

A few days hence, the Quebec Liberal party convention is going to enter the raging debate concerning special status for Quebec. Demands for more and more autonomy are escalating in the province as it seeks to fulfill its role as champion of the French-Canadians and their way of life.

Perhaps we can shed some light on the problem by examining it in terms of the meaning of federalism.

The essence of federalism is the division of sovereignty between two levels of government. Under any system of government, there are sovereign and delegated authorities.

In a unitary system, like Britain, all sovereign powers are concentrated in the central government. In a federal state like Canada, regional or provincial governments, in addition to the central authority, are invested with sovereign powers.

Nowhere, however, do both levels of government enjoy sovereignty in all domains, since this would lead to incessant conflicts. For this reason, federal constitutions, such as our BNA Act, indicate, in a more or less exact way, the fields of absolute competence of the central and provincial authorities.

One Unique Feature

The Canadian federation has one unique feature; one province, Quebec, is culturally very different from her sister provinces, exceedingly conscious of her individuality, and anxious to preserve it.

Canada is a vast, loose-jointed country and needs a strong creative central government to give its citizens a sense of common loyalty and purpose. The clash between Quebec and the central government is one of sovereignty.

In a federation, can a regional and central government share sovereignty in the same domain? This is the dilemma.

A Final Solution?

The man who may have set the stage for a final solution to this serious matter is Rene Levesque, a former cabinet minister in Jean Lesage's Liberal Quebec government.

The forthcoming Liberal convention will either adopt or reject Levesque's resolution which proposes a politically independent Quebec linked to Canada in the same fashion as the Benelux countries — Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg — are tied together.

If this proposal is endorsed it could force both of Quebec's major parties to outbid each other to liquidate federation.

Were Levesque's views to become embodied in "L'Union Canadienne," Canada would become a confederation (something it is erroneously called now). It would become a regime of two states co-operating in an alliance covering certain areas such as defence, now exclusively within Ottawa's jurisdiction.

In the past, the majority of the world's confederations have either become federations or have dissolved. For this reason, the annual Liberal convention is of special importance — though this importance might not be realized until well after the last delegate has gone home.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

● How would Quebec autonomy affect the rights of French Canadians living outside that province? What effect would it have on other Canadian minority groups?

● Were you prime minister, what stand would you take on this issue?

In Cuba Its 1984

Cuba officially disclosed last week that every third Cuban on the island spies on his neighbor for the government.

The Orwellian disclosure that 2,500,000 of Cuba's present 5,500,000 population are members of Fidel Castro's so-called committees for the defence of the revolution came on the eve of the seventh anniversary of the establishment of the espionage network.

at a time when the electorate wanted youth and something excitingly new. The Bird report suggests the Liberal government has been too anxious to fish for votes and that a credible opposition "is going to make life tougher."

On Canada generally, Bird says Canadians had been breaking links with older countries since the days of Champlain "but never completely."

The paternal shadow of the Crown had declined, but a Canadian identity still owed something to it.

The country is for the young and it has a great future, Bird concludes. The young were no longer being drawn irresistibly towards the United States.

South African Pilots Bomb Biafra

Nigeria Using White Mercenaries

By LINDA BLANDFORD
Of the London Sunday Times

Despite fierce denials by the Nigerian federal government since the start of the civil war that it has been hiring mercenaries, its air force has in fact employed European pilots since Aug. 14.

What's more, five of the seven mercenary pilots are South African.

Gen. Yakalwu Gwon, the 31-year-old leader of the military government, evidently did not realize this until recently — for the fact that white South Africans have been used to bomb Biafra will have devastating consequences on Nigeria's prestige among other African states.

Until now the pilots' presence has been one of the federal defence ministry's closely guarded secrets: an official Nigerian journalist who accidentally photographed General Gwon merely talking with a white pilot had his film destroyed.

I discovered the headquarters of the pilots in Lagos from the wife of one of the English pilots staying there. It is a detached house in the fashionable suburb of Ikoyi. Armed police guard the approaches.

The pilots are paid $2,800 a month, tax free, three months in advance, into accounts with the Swiss Bank Corporation at 2 Rue de la Confédération, Geneva. Although hired basically to train Nigerians, they go on bombing raids themselves.

They flew deep into the midwest and eastern regions of Nigeria. The story of Nigeria's mercenaries began in July, when two old-fashioned B26 bombers belonging to the Biafrans, operating from Enugu, terrorized the federal army.

The federal government is squeezed onto a small, traffic-packed island in Lagos, connected to the mainland by one vulnerable bridge. When the B26s tried to bomb Lagos, they threatened more than dismayed civilians.

The Nigerian air force could not retaliate. Last year's tribal blood-letting stripped the country of many of its civil service and military elite.

In August, the government bought seven Czechoslovak L26 Delfin jet planes through an international arms dealer to supplement their four Dakotas. They also hired pilots to fly the planes.

Pilots were a necessity — and money grabbers were regarded as more reliable than idealists. They were recruited through a network of personal contacts by the Nigerian embassy in Paris, whose ambassador, Abdul Malik, is the most important Nigerian outside Lagos.

Two weeks ago 16 MiG-17 jet fighters arrived in Lagos, but written into the purchasing contract for these aircraft was a clause that they could be flown only by Nigerian nationals. A Russian fighter shot down with a South African pilot aboard was internationally inconceivable. Unfortunately, though, no Nigerian can fly MiGs — and from airports in Kaduna, Kano and Makurdi. For the first months, they flew from morning till dusk, seven days a week. They bombed air-strips, power stations, radio transmitters, troop convoys, ammunition dumps, troop concentrations and, inevitably, towns sheltering these targets.

Two weeks ago, the mercenary pilots achieved their biggest coup by shooting up Biafra's two B26s on the ground at Enugu. It was after this that federal troops began their advance.

Two weeks ago 16 MiG-17 jet fighters arrived in Lagos, but written into the purchasing contract for these aircraft was a clause that they could be flown only by Nigerian nationals. A Russian fighter shot down with a South African pilot aboard was internationally inconceivable. Unfortunately, though, no Nigerian can fly MiGs — and suddenly Egyptian and Czech pilots appeared, with a Russian chief pilot. Their hideout remains a secret. They are to be seen only occasionally, a tight clique, at the airport hotel swimming pool or at the airport itself.

The MiGs are the most powerful planes in Nigeria, their pilots are the new heroes.

Crash scene on Douglas

Injured Passengers Escape

Sooke Ambulance Wrecked

The Sooke ambulance, carrying three people injured in a collision, was overturned and wrecked when it collided with a car at Douglas and Finlayson at 1:20 p.m., Sunday.

The three on their way to Royal Jubilee Hospital hung strapped in until freed. They were not injured in the city smash.

The ambulance driver, William Stephenson, 37, of Sooke, was thrown out of the ambulance in the accident but was not injured.

THREE PATIENTS

Patients in the ambulance were Peter Turle, 18, 3834 Wilkinson, who is good condition with back and head injuries; Roger McKay, 19, 4650 Blenkinsop, who is in good condition with a broken leg; and Lella Harding, 19, 476 Lampson, who is fairly good with a broken elbow and ankle.

They had been passengers in a car driven by Carl Evers, of 19 Fern Street, which collided head-on with a car driven by Elvin Beange of Sooke on Sooke Road near Cooper's Cove.

SIREN, LIGHT
The ambulance was headed south on Douglas at the time of the collision with its siren and red light flashing. It was in collision with a car headed west on Finlayson and driven by Allan Proctor, 33, 1630 North Dairy.

Two of the injured people were strapped into stretchers in the rear of the ambulance and the third was strapped into the front seat.

City police summoned firemen to the intersection because of spilled gas.

VEHICLE LOANED

The ambulance is believed to be a write-off and Garden City ambulance has loaned one of its vehicles to Sooke. A meeting of trustees of the Sooke Volunteer Fire Department will be called to discuss the position.

Annabelle Watts, 3902 Cadboro Bay Road, suffered lacerations and abrasions when her car struck a fence on the corner of Cadboro Bay and Pacific Sunday morning.

Miss Watts was treated and released from Royal Jubilee.

Province Chases Cash Record

B.C. Forest Blazes Leave Soft Spot

B.C. still hopes for a record year in 1967. Trade Minister Lofmark said Monday, but the latest summary of business activity indicates some areas of growing concern in the provincial economy.

The forest industry, B.C.'s largest and worth more than $1,000,000,000 last year, is one of these soft areas, the report indicated.

It said the July timber scale of 122,000,000 cubic feet was nearly 3,000,000 cubic feet less than the same month in 1966. The report added, it is expected August figures will show a further drop because of extensive fire closures.

FISH CATCH

Fish landings in the first seven months of the year were valued at $25,400,000, compared with $32,800,000 during the same period in 1966. The report said that although labor disputes had an effect, the principal cause of the decline was smaller catches.

It added hopefully that September catches were higher than expected and therefore the final value of fishing landings might be closer to 1966 levels.

On the bright side, however, mining activity in the first six months continued to show strong gains over last year in almost every sector. Crude oil and natural gas production were higher by 17 per cent and 22 per cent respectively.

The value of shipments from B.C. factories in the first half of this year was practically unchanged from 1966, but seven-month totals showed paper production up 1 per cent, pulp up nearly 9 per cent, and plywood up 4 per cent.

The construction industry remained more active to the end of July than it was in the first seven months of 1966.

Retail sales, the report said, reflected generally prosperous conditions, up 6 per cent for the first half of the year.

Trade through B.C. ports sharply increased in the first five months of this year, with exports up 18 per cent and imports 10 per cent higher than the same period in 1966.

Jail Term Defers Thief's Marriage

Twenty-year-old Maurice Genest broke into Fernwood Purty Store overnight Friday for the second time in 19 months and was sentenced to jail again.

Genest, 1261 Johnson, pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Monday to breaking, entering and theft. He was sentenced to one year definite and six months indefinite in the Young Offenders' Unit.

Magistrate William Ostler observed when sentencing Genest that Genest had broken into the same store February of last year and had been sentenced to the same institute then.

BLANKETS STOLEN
Det. Lorne Johnson said he spoke to Genest at Genest's residence Sunday afternoon. The detective said he asked Genest about two blankets on his bed and Genest said he knew they were stolen.

Later, Genest gave a statement admitting breaking into the store and stealing clothing, food and kitchen utensils. About $172 worth of goods were recovered, Det. Johnson said.

REQUEST DENIED
Before being sentenced, Genest asked the magistrate if he could receive a suspended sentence because he was getting married next month.

"Before you get married," Magistrate Ostler said, "you will have to pull yourself together."

Furniture was barricaded against a suite door at about 3 a.m. Sunday when city police went to investigate a noisy party at 1616 Belmont.

Sgt. Donald Buie said he heard the furniture being moved against the door after he had called out that he was a police officer.

After police got a key and entered the suite with the landlord, Sgt. Buie met John Nelson Fleming, 21, of 163 Olive.

Sgt. Buie said that when he was talking to the female tenant of the suite, Fleming interjected: "Get out of here. You've got no warrant."

Sgt. Buie said Fleming continued to interject in spite of warnings, and was arrested. Magistrate Ostler fined Fleming $50.

A man who went berserk in a Saanich beer parlor Saturday night told Magistrate Ostler: "I found I can't handle my beer."

Roy Shea, 23, of 736 Powderly was fined $35 when he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk. Shea had refused to move along when police asked him to on Caledonia Saturday night, court was told.

Shea was one of several people attempting to crash a party.

Mr. Stoltz said that Tessier, of Work Point Barracks, hit the rear of another car at Bay and Rose Sunday morning and kept going. A passenger in the other car was thrown out and suffered arm and leg injuries.

Hector Johnston, 928 Shirley, was fined $300 and had his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. He struck a parked car on Hillside just after midnight Saturday and was found about 30 minutes later in Esquimalt.

Oniel Regnier, HMCS Columbia, was fined $300 and had his licence suspended when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving. He was involved in an accident on Old Island Highway Sunday night and gave a breathalyzer reading of .20 per cent.

Tight Money No Bar To Building

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Money may be tight, and more costly than ever, but the way people are building homes in British Columbia would suggest there's no day of reckoning in sight.

Central Mortgage and Housing has produced figures which show that in August housing starts in the province were up from 817 units a year ago to 1800, while the eight-month period saw this year 33 per cent ahead of 1966 at 11,174 units against 8,399 units a year ago.

The boom in housing, however, was not evenly distributed. In Metropolitan Victoria the number of starts for the eight months was 1,099 against 1,098 a year ago, but it took a good August — 215 starts against 73 — to enable the city to catch up on the 1966 figures.

The 1967 housing boom is greatest in Vancouver — 8,889 starts against 5,823; in Kelowna — 209 against 94; in Nanaimo 136 against 39 and in Vernon — 221 against 50.

The bad spots for 1967 housing are Prince George, down to 262 from 747; Port Alberni, — 34 this year and 87 last year; and Prince Rupert, down to 23 from 170.

The upturn was mainly in apartment dwellings but there was also an overall increase of 63 per cent in August in single homes.

VACANCIES LOWER
Vacancies in newly completed houses are substantially lower than a year ago indicating a strong demand.

NHA loans for the year so far are 5,071 units, up 37 per cent from a year ago.

The recent increase in mortgage rates, culminating last week in the rise to 8 1/2 per cent as the NHA ceiling, may cause a slowing down in the tempo of new starts in the remaining months of the year, according to some financing and home-building experts.

BID FOR TUGBOATS
Sogemines Ltd., a Canadian holding company with Belgian interests, has made an offer to buy control of McAllister Towing Company in a share exchange deal that would give nine Sogemines shares for 10 McAllister.

McAllister, which has tugboat operations in Eastern Canada and the United States is also the controlling company of Island Tug and Barge of Victoria.

McAllister shares rose $3 to $12 on the news.

Old Mine Stock Gains in Value

Kenneth C. Drury, a one-time Victoria newspaper man, says that tucked away somewhere among old treasures may be some stock certificates that after 40 years are now worth money.

The shares are those of Rufus-Argenta Mines Ltd. which sold in the 1920s and were fairly widely held in the Victoria, Duncan and Vancouver areas as well as in Washington and Hawaii.

Mr. Drury is the sole surviving director of the company and is its official liquidator.

He says that the old shares, of which 3,000,000 were outstanding, may now be exchanged into shares of Crest Ventures Limited on the basis of one Crest for 19 Rufus Argenta.

The company held claims 12 miles from Stewart, B.C., when the Rufus and Argenta claims were discovered 45 years ago by W. H. Forrest and his son Thorne of Cobble Hill and Benny O. Erikson of Seattle. All three are dead, and Mr. Drury is the only original director left.

Pros and Cons Battle Over Pay Television

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proponents of pay television sold the Federal Communications Commission Monday it should authorize a national toll TV system because the present advertiser-supported television "can not alone supply the benefits the public is entitled to expect."

At the same time, opponents said pay television would discriminate against one-third of the U.S. population, by denying to the urban poor the television entertainment they now get without direct charges.

Educator Honored

E. G. Callbeck, newly appointed to the administrative staff of Greater Victoria School District, was honored Saturday in Red Deer, by Alberta Teachers' Association.

ATA's council on school administration presented Mr. Callbeck with its distinguished service award, citing him as "an educator who has made an outstanding contribution to education in Alberta."

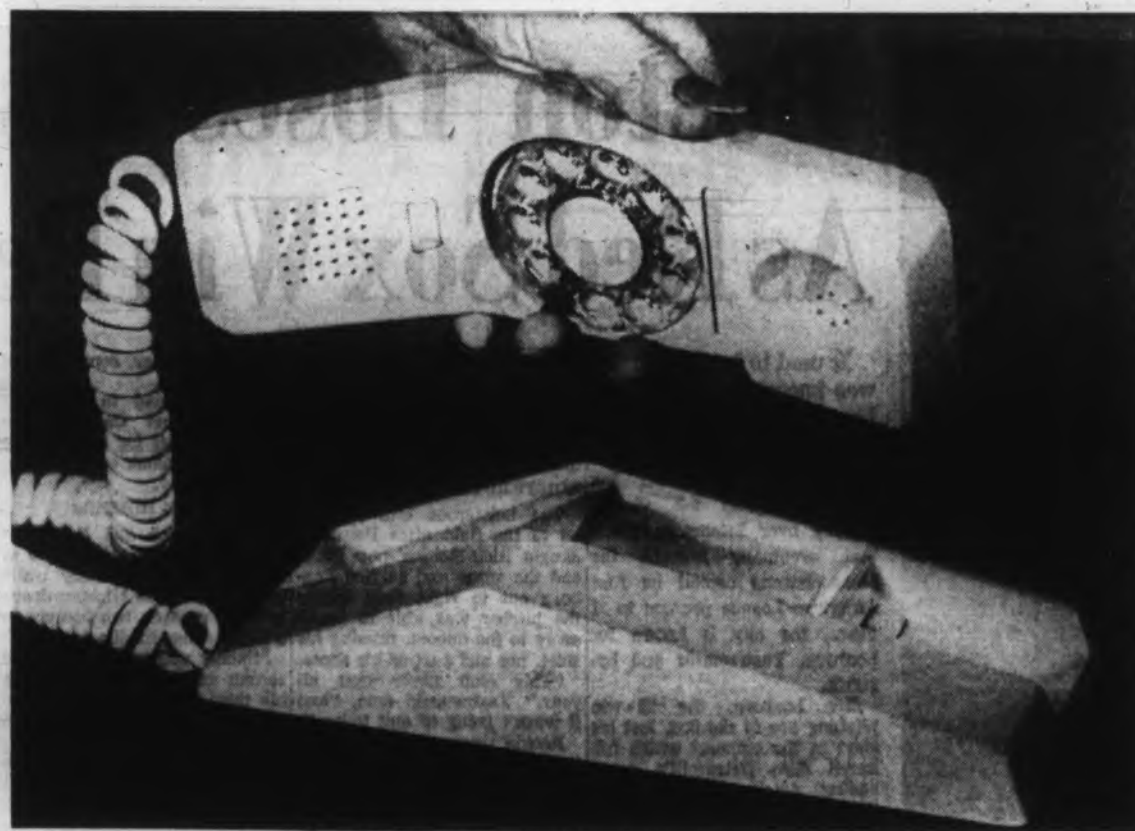

Mr. Callbeck is now Greater Victoria's co-ordinator of special education services.

He was formerly director of elementary instruction in Calgary.

Clock Saves Library

TEL AVIV (AP) — A cheap plastic briefcase containing an explosive powerful enough to cause heavy damage lay in the library of the American Embassy for nine days before it was discovered, police informants said.

They said it failed to explode only because the clock on its timing device stopped minutes before it was set to go off.

Versatility, Compactness in Future

Not much bigger than opened wallet is Canadian telephone set of future, with dialling system in hand-piece. Compact unit, which may be used as desk set or wall-mounted, new telephone is now being tested by Northern Electric, and was designed and built in Canada. Similar sets now are in use in Seattle, but these will not likely be available to public before 1969.

B.C. Drew Tourists

Attraction of Expo Became 'Legendary'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The effect of Expo on the British Columbia tourist industry was not completely detrimental, Travel Industry Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Monday.

He told the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Tourist Advisory Council that although reports of Expo drawing visitors away from B.C. have "taken on legendary proportions . . . the over-all effect was not bad."

"Admittedly it acted as a magnet to the other side of the continent, but a vacuum was created and in most areas of the province it was filled—and filled with new visitors."

NEW VISITORS
"The massive promotional campaign of Expo made Americans more aware of our country than ever, and these new visitors will be coming back."

The minister said he is concerned that the provincial government's grant plan for tourist promotion had been used in only four of the nine tourist regions.

"Surprisingly, beyond the regional director level, few people seem aware that for each dollar raised locally the government will supply a dollar and fifty cents," he said.

PROMOTION
"The contributing grant plan was designed to give regions a large enough foundation on which to build a professionally planned promotion."

"I would question the validity of the practice of regions ending the year's promotion simply because they have run out of matching dollars."

Mr. Kiernan said that the province has increased its accommodation by 2,216 rooms to 33,907 over the past five years.

Provincial and private camp and trailer sites provide another 18,697 units.

ACCOMMODATION
"We have not only increased our accommodation, but upgraded it as well," he said.

Railway Unions Asked to Merge

By BEN WARD
OTTAWA (CP)—A proposal to merge 16 non-operating railway unions into one with a single Canadian identity was made Monday by the executive board of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

The plan, presented in a 2,500-word policy statement to the union's triennial convention, suggests the 15 international unions involved would have to give up their U.S. connections.

The CBRT would agree to surrender its own identity in the merger process.

President W. J. Smith said he is confident the policy statement will be approved when it comes up for debate later this week at the convention, closed to the press.

Although the CBRT is the only all-Canadian union among the 16 in the non-op field, Mr.

Smith told the 400 convention delegates that the national aspect of the unity plan was not being promoted solely for that reason.

"We are this single consolidated union as a national union as a matter of necessity as well as being a natural development. It would be structurally impossible for the Canadian sections of 15 international unions to merge while still retaining their separate affiliations with their parent unions in the United States."

"In addition, there would no longer be any need for a single Canadian rail union to remain international."

Mr. Smith said that if the proposal is approved, the CBRT's executive officers will approach leaders of the other unions immediately after the end of the convention seeking a general conference on the merger.

Mustangs Recalled

DETROIT (UPI)—Ford Motor Co. asked U.S. owners of 78,000 1967 Ford Mustangs Monday to bring their cars to a dealer to check for a steering defect which could leave the driver with a loose steering wheel in his hands.

The firm advised Mustang owners to "test their steering wheels by pulling up on the wheel to determine whether there is any looseness." If there is, the company said, "the vehicles should be taken immediately to a Ford dealership."

When did Niagara come into the picture?

A medical bill. A clothing bill. A car repair bill. They all seemed to come at once. Jack needed money in a hurry.

Answer: A Niagara Loan. Jack talked it over with the manager of the nearest Niagara Office. Besides getting the money, he got a lot of good advice on budgeting. With a Niagara Loan, Jack was able to pay all his bills at one time. And repay the loan on easy terms to suit his budget.

When you need extra money for any good reason, you can expect the same courteous, quick service at any one of 300 Niagara offices.

Speaking BrieflyCharles Wins Atlanta Golf

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Bob Charles, New Zealand southpaw playing steadier than any of his right-handed challengers, captured the Atlanta Classic Golf crown Sunday with a finishing 70 for a six-under par total of 282.

The $22,000 jackpot claimed by Charles—only lefty ever to win a PGA title—boosted his 1967 winnings to $72,148, most ever pocketed in a season on the tour by a foreigner.

Charles took the title on the Atlanta Country Club course by two strokes over fading Tommy Bolt and surging Dick Crawford and Gardner Dickson Jr., who finished in a three-way deadlock for second at 284.

BOLT EVEN PAR

Bolt, 49-year-old veteran who started the finishing round tied with Charles, dropped out of the battle with bogeys on the eighth and ninth holes. He finished with a 72.

Crawford, 28-year-old Bella Vista, Ark., bachelor, closed with a 68 to vault out of the pack, and Dickinson, Alabama veteran who started the day in a tie for 10th, moved up with a finishing 67.

WON $8,650

The three won $8,650 each, an unusually fat payday for them as they took advantage of the absence of golf's big names, Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gay Brewer and Julius Boros.

Charles, 31-year-old former banker who claimed his third American triumph since turning pro in 1960, protected his lead with a spectacular shot out of the woods on the 17th.

The 1963 British Open champ blasted a two-iron shot around the trees and onto the green for a par which kept him in command.

Charles had moved in front on the eighth when he birdied the 555-yard par five hole, and he pulled away for good by dropping a four-foot birdie putt on the 11th hole.

The victory was his first since he won the 1965 Tucson Open. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg finished with 297 and picked up $720.

Great Year Disappoints Roberto

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Roberto Clemente, who won his fourth National League batting title, says the 1967 baseball season was his greatest year—and his biggest disappointment, too.

Clemente batted .357, best of his brilliant 13-year career, led the major leagues in hits with 209 and was second in the National League in runs batted in with 110, one less than Oran-do Cepeda of the pennant-winning St. Louis Cardinals.

But his Pittsburgh Pirates, nearly everybody's pre-season pennant favorites, placed sixth, 20½ games behind St. Louis.

"I have to say I think this was my best year," Clemente said. "Last year I had a pretty good year, too, but lots of other guys on the team had good years."

"But this year I have my highest batting average, and I got over 100 RBI again and 23 home runs."

Surprise Win

LEXINGTON, Ky. (CP) — Little-regarded Canadian-foaled three-year-old trotter, Garma Alert, won the fourth-heat race-off to capture the historic Walnut Hall Cup.

Clemente also won the batting title in 1961, 1964 and 1965.

The standout year for Clemente, whose lifetime batting average is .312, was tempered by the Pirates' flop.

"Sure, you have to be disappointed when you have so much talent on the ball club and finish in the position we finished," Clemente said.

The firing July 18 of manager Harry Walker, under whom Clemente enjoyed his greatest years, was a blow to the right fielder, particularly since Walker or was replaced by Danny Murtaugh, who will not be back in 1968.

Clemente and Murtaugh never were particularly close when Murtaugh managed Pittsburgh from 1958-64, but neither allowed their old feud to be reopened this season.

On the other hand, Clemente and Walker were unusually close.

Savings Bonds

One of the great things about Canada is Canada Savings Bonds, and this year's Series is the most exciting yet. Interest starts at 5¼% a year—the highest starting rate ever on a Canada Savings Bond—and goes right up to 6%. Over the 13 years to maturity the true average annual yield is 5.48%.

Best of all, Canada Savings Bonds have a wonderful compound interest feature which pays you interest on your interest. Take full advantage of it and you will double your money.

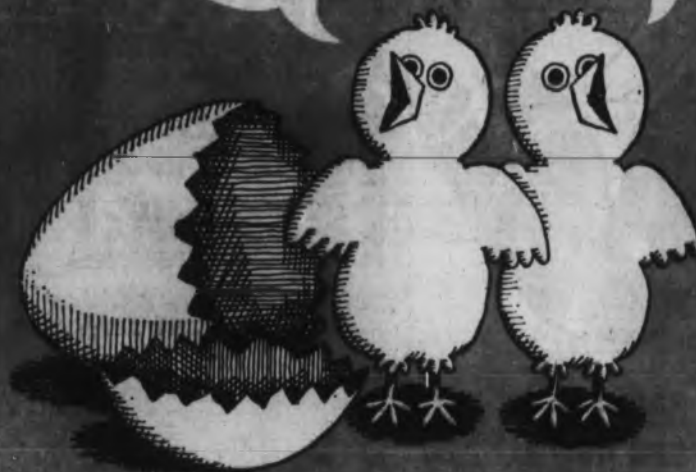

As always, Canada Savings Bonds are instant cash. They may be cashed at any time for their full face value plus accrued interest. They are easy to buy for cash or on instalments. They fit all savings budgets—from $50 up.

And, for the first time ever, Canada's most popular personal investment may be purchased by businesses, churches, charities, clubs, and other organizations. Another first: the limit per holder for this Series has been increased to $50,000.

Backed by all the resources of Canada, Canada Savings Bonds are a great way to save. Buy yours today and double your money.

Police Come to Rescue After Gaglardi Crash

VANCOUVER — Highway Minister Phil Gaglardi took an unexpected ride in a police car after he was involved in an automobile accident. The patrol car took him to his hotel room after $600 damage was done to his car.

"The driver of the car stopped suddenly at an intersection," the highways minister said, "I braked hard but my car skidded right into him."

GEORGETOWN, Guyana — Cheddi Jagan, Marxist leader of Guyana's opposition party, has been refused permission to enter the U.S. for a lecture tour. It was the second refusal in two years. He is due in Canada next month.

NEW YORK — Funeral services were held for character actor Ludwig Donath, who came from the anti-Nazi underground of Germany to play Nazi roles in Hollywood.

WASHINGTON — Thurgood Marshall took his place as the first Negro justice of the U.S. Supreme Court where 13 years ago he won the milestone school desegregation ruling on behalf of his race. With President Johnson looking on, the 55-year-old great grandson of a slave swore to "do equal right to the poor and to the rich."

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Dr. James L. Goodard, commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, has attacked marijuana laws.

"Marijuana clearly does not possess the inherent dangers of LSD for example, and the present law imposes a very severe penalty. It is too severe," he said in a Harvard University student radio station.

EDMONTON — Charles Hill, 29, of Edmonton, was sentenced to life imprisonment for the rifle slaying last Nov. 22 of RCMP constable Donald Pearson. He pleaded guilty to a charge of non-capital murder.

PRINCE GEORGE — John Buckley, assistant director of the British Columbia travel department, was elected B.C. Travel "Man of the Year" by the Pacific Northwest Travel Association.

Former Socred Head Keeps Eye on Tories

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Thompson, MP for Red Deer, Alta., and former national Social Credit leader, hinted Monday he may be attracted to the Progressive Conservatives if their new leader, Robert Stanfield, develops dynamic policies on national issues in coming months.

"I want to quash any speculation that I am negotiating with or intend to join the Liberals," Mr. Thompson said in an interview on his return from a two-week Far Eastern tour that included a two-day visit to South Viet Nam.

"I'm reserving my judgment on the Conservatives," he added.

NO FOR CHINA

In the Commons Prime Minister Pearson said the things now going on in China rule out any likelihood of China being accepted into the United Nations at the world body's current session.

Gordon Churchill (PC-Winnipeg South Centre) asked Paul Hellyer whether "the fresh transport minister" would deal as ruthlessly with "Sailor Jack" Pickersgill as he had dealt with naval admirals when defence minister.

In other Commons business:

● Heward Grafftey (PC-Brome Missisquoi) claimed that hundreds of qualified students are being refused admittance to medical schools this fall because of a shortage of teaching facilities.

● Prime Minister Pearson said he had no information to support a rumor that U.S. bombers were refuelling in Alberta but he would make inquiries.

● Trade Minister Winters in reply to a question by Eldon Woolliams (PC-Bow River) said the Canadian Wheat Board will sell wheat internationally at competitive prices.

● Finance Minister Sharp said legislation to amend the Canada Deposit Insurance Act is ready for introduction to Parliament.

Bishops Favor Updated Code

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishops' synod plunged into its first debate Monday and emerged with a groundswell of opinion in favor of a drastically modernized code of canon law.

Prelates asked for an end to secret trials, automatic and harsh punishments for violations and complicated appeals rules.

They called for an emphasis on spirituality rather than on strict law, for a greater role for laymen and Catholic women and for more power to local bishops in defining church law in general.

TOLD OF PUSH

They also asked that the code be simplified and written in language that could be understood by all.

Reliable reports coming out of the secret session also told of a push by progressive clerics to broaden the pontifical commission that has been working for four years to revise the canon law—the body of decrees and regulations governing the religious lives of the world's 500,000,000 Catholics.

Informants reported criticism that the commission was made up almost exclusively of jurists, and that it should include sociologists, theologians and philosophers.

Paul Emile Cardinal Leger, the progressive archbishop of Montreal, was said to have denounced drafts of the project.

ed new code as too juridical and to have asked that traces of Roman law in it be omitted whenever possible.

One delegate said the code should be "more in harmony with the modern mentality." It was last revised 50 years ago.

Pope John XXIII announced in 1959 that it would be revised again. He appointed a commission in 1963 to do this.

Buffalo Steaks Coming Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada again may become the home where the buffalo roam. The national and historic parks branch of the northern development department is advertising nationally for tenders to sell some of their buffalo herds for commercial ranching.

"It should be a reasonably profitable business," said J. I. Nicol, acting branch director.

"We have a constant stream of inquiries from people wanting buffalo meat from our herds. We've never been able to supply the demand and especially this year with Expo '67 and the Centennial clambakes."

It is the first time the branch has launched a program to sell the buffalo on the hoof. In the past, meat was sold from the buffalo slaughtered in herd management.

A few private herds are in existence but the main surviving descendants of the thousands of Buffalo that once ranged the western plains live in controlled herds at Elk Island National Park, near Edmonton, and Wood Buffalo National Park, on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border.

The herds are kept mainly as scientific and natural history exhibits. A few have been sold before to zoos.

Mr. Nicol said the buffalo being put up for tender will come from the disease-free herds at Elk Island.

The department placed ads in Canadian newspapers about 10 days ago calling for tenders at a minimum price per animal of $300.

Mr. Nicol said buffalo are harder to buy than beef cattle and require roughly the same range. The main problem in raising them for meat is the need for strong fences.

"An electric fence is no good," he said. "They'll charge an electric fence and get a good jolt as they go through but they'll break through all right."

"Of course, you have to be more careful herding them than cattle, especially if there are bulls around."

For a start, the branch plans to sell one herd of 22 cows and three bulls.

Based on the experience of herd management, department officers figure they will be able to judge reasonably well how successful the buyer can be when they know what experience and facilities he'll have.

"It's going to take a long time to develop commercial ranching of buffalo," one official said.

One reason is that, given a good year, the 25-annual herd should produce about 16 calves a year, which means something less than that could be marketed.

Voyagers in Ottawa

UVic canoeists Geoff Davis, left, and Ken McRae, both of Kimberley, Monday gave Governor-General Michener letter from Lieutenant-Governor

Kierans Sees Cost Too High

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—the Union Nationale government stands on the independence issue is already crippling the province's future "and will damage our economy for years to come."

"My thesis is a simple one," he said. "A separate and independent Quebec would lead our people down the road to poverty, heavy unemployment and misery."

Mr. Kierans said last week he will resign from the provincial party if it accepts at its October convention the suggestion of another prominent Liberal, Rene Levesque, that Quebec should become a sovereign state.

Saturday Liberal Leader Jean Lesage said he would refuse to lead any political party that opted for separatism.

Mr. Kierans entitled his Sunday speech Equality Yes, Separatism No, and warned Quebecers their province would lose by independence "because we receive more than we give."

"At the present time, approximately 35 per cent of federal payments to the provinces go to the province of Quebec. The Quebec taxpayer finances only 25 per cent of such payments."

Preston Police Chief Gets Threat of Death

PRESTON, Ont. (CP)—Police Chief Arthur Woods says an anonymous threat against his life has been made in connection with his role in the forcible removal last Thursday of two foster children from the home of Mrs. Arthur Timbrell of Preston.

But he declined to make any further comments.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Arthur Timbrell appealed for calm and reason following the wave of brutality charges made in telephone calls from across Canada against Chief Woods and his men.

"There was no police brutality," she said. "They were just doing their job and they did it well."

Mainland Vote Foreshadows Greater Victoria Decision

By JOHN MATTERS

Homeowners of the Greater Vancouver area will vote Wednesday on an issue that will have similar dimensions here next year.

They will decide whether they want to pay for $51,000,000 worth of improvements to hospitals in a cluster of 14 municipalities on the Lower Mainland.

People of the Greater Victoria area will have the same sort of issue, but on a reduced scale, before them in 1968.

Within a month, the Regional District of the Capital of British Columbia will probably have its letters patent amended by the provincial government to include hospitals.

This will give the board authority to raise the local share of hospital construction costs among owner-electors in the area stretching from Sooke to Sidney and extending to the Gulf Islands.

However, it is unlikely the board will act on its hospital functions until it receives the report of consultants who are now studying the area's health care needs.

The Agnew Peckham study, commissioned by the Hospitals Planning Council and paid for by the municipalities and the provincial government, is expected to detail those needs early in 1968.

The health care requirements will be stated in order of priority.

Cyclist Gangs Face Cut-Off

Police in B.C. will be advised to use sections of the Criminal Code prohibiting unlawful assembly in dealing with activities of motorcycle gangs, Attorney-General Bonner said Monday.

Trouble that broke out when about 30 motorcyclists converged on Clinton recently, the attorney-general said, prompted an examination of the law.

Mr. Bonner said police would be advised to use unlawful assembly provisions of the code to head off possible trouble before it broke out.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a rule that if the TV is on no other light should be burning in the house. Paul's favorite expression is, "Don't waste the juice, Marie."

I don't leave lights burning all over the place, but I do like to have a light on when I am sitting in a room. Paul even hates to turn on the porch lights when we are expecting guests. Last week when my mother was leaving our place he turned off the porch light before she got to the bottom of the stairs and she nearly fell.

Paul makes $160 a week and we are not hard up for money. He thinks nothing of spending $15 a week for beer but if I want to sew or read at night he gets mad because it is cheaper to do it in the daytime. Any comment?—BLACKED OUT.

Dear Out: This is not an unusual peculiarity. The woman at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington has the same problem—and her husband makes $100,000 a year. The next time Paul complains hand him 2¢. That's what it costs to burn a 100-watt bulb for seven hours.

Dear Ann: Several weeks ago you printed a letter from "Fla Florence" who was miserable because she couldn't even fill out a 32 bra. I'll bet she and all the other Fla Florences are in seventh heaven now that these crazy Twiggy-type styles have hit the scene. The girl with two backs and no front is really "in."

My problem is just the opposite. Yesterday when I went to buy a dress, I heard a saleswoman say, "Good grief, here comes good old D-Cup!" You have no idea how this hurts. The girls with too little are much better off than the ones with too much. A padded bra can solve their problem, but there is no solution for us. My shoulders ache from the wide, tight straps I must wear to support the super-structure. Sweaters and knits are out. Tent-type dresses which are so smart on slim girls make me look like an elephant.

So please tell Fla Florence and her underdressed sisters that they are in luck at last. Shed a tear now for—THE BOSOMY BELLES.

Dear Belles: Turn off the waterworks. Sister, you're wasting the natural resources. I took a poll in this office and 12 out of 14 girls said they'd rather have your problem than Florence's.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Disenchanted" was a good one. I am also a widow and have run into the same situation she described. "Disenchanted" failed to mention, however, one of the primary reasons respectable widows can't get a man. Listen to this:

Last year I was asked out by three of the town's most eligible bachelors. One was an attorney, another was a professor and the third an eye specialist. I soon discovered that I was being used as a decoy to confuse the public. Each of these men had a sizzling relationship going with a so-called respectable married gal. As one Lothario put it, "Why buy a cow when milk is so cheap?"—ONLY A COVER.

Dear Only: Why do you consider these men eligible? They are not interested in marriage. Dating such characters would be a waste of your time.

Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Boardman, 1880 Ferndale Road, are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Dona Louise, to Mr. Edward Lynn Thomas MacKenzie, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. McKenzie of Prince George, B.C. The wedding will take place Saturday, Nov. 11 at 6:30 p.m., in St. Dunstan's Anglican Church, with Archdeacon A. E. Hendy officiating.—(Chevron's Studio)

Both are by Aquascutum of London.

Elegant Silhouette

Men's Styles Get Bolder Look

LONDON—Men are becoming bolder. That is the basic fashion fact for clothes-conscious men. This interpretation of men's styles has manifested itself in both London and Rome, and the leading French designers are also promoting it. In London the line is percolating through Savile Row, Chelsea and Carnaby Street, getting more exaggerated as the standards are lowered. Some call it the "Back to the 30's Look," others define it as the "gangster look," but neither of these tags is strictly correct because this new look has not the chunky bagginess of the past era. It is still essentially a slim, elegant silhouette with the idea of projecting a youthful figure. This is achieved by emphasis on the waist of the jacket and a flare to the skirt and with narrow trouser legs.

The bolder look in single-breasted styles comes in longer jackets with a broader shoulder line while still retaining a natural slope, broader lapels (sometimes even the double-breasted lapel to the single-breasted suit), slightly wider trouser bottoms, and bolder cloth designs in both patterns and colors. In fact, the basic factor in fashion today is color and the move is towards stronger and brighter colors. Although at Goodwood, the best-dressed race meeting in Britain, gray seemed to be the dominant color in the paddock, where many of the elite gather, many of the younger men wore charcoal and mid-grays in this interpretation of men's styles. This was in part gray fine worsted with a wild but subtle check pattern. The flared, waisted jacket had slant, slashed pockets and deep side vents.

Blue was the second most favored color, and although brown has been actively promoted as a fashion color it was not greatly in evidence. It will probably take at least another year before brown really gets a hold on the fashion scene and even then it will probably only be a secondary color.

Meanwhile, John Taylor, editor of "Tailor and Cutter," the men's fashion authority, recently took to wearing a suit in green. This was not quite as avant-garde as it sounds. The color was an unobtrusive shade of dark bottle green, called by some Gretina Green. But it is not anticipated that green suits will be de-rigueur for every man. For normal day wear blues and grays will still be the most popular colors in worsteds with a move towards the brighter shades, and more color too is coming into the pattern decorations. It is here that greens are being introduced.

In cloth patterns, stripes and herringbones are fashion and are becoming bolder for day wear and there is a feeling too for window-pane checks.

Likely candidate for a big revival is the country suit with venturously woven tweeds becoming in themselves smarter and more sophisticated and bringing their own colors into semi-formal occasions. Green again is a fashion color but the bright clear blues, browns and yellows give a tremendous variety.

Tote Pole Home

REGINA (CP) — Grade 11 and 12 students at Campion College designed a school flag for Centennial but lacked a flag pole until a construction company donated one 45 feet tall at a site several blocks from the school. GANGES — The Centennial Salt Spring Island Garden Club fall show was held in Fulford community hall, and drew a large crowd of Islanders as well as visitors.

In spite of the dry summer, the many choice blooms of chrysanthemums and dahlias, the artistic arrangements of autumn flowers, and the displays of fruits and vegetables were of excellent quality.

The show was opened by Mr. Charles Carter, provincial horticulturalist, who presented the seven trophies including the C. J. Freeborn Memorial trophy to Mrs. E. Brenton, for the best blooms in three distinct varieties of disbudded outdoor grown chrysanthemums. Mrs. Brenton was also awarded the Scott and Peden Trophy for best bloom in the chrysanthemum section and the S.S.I. Chrysanthemum Society trophy for highest total points in the show.

Miss G. C. Hamilton was awarded the Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Freeborn trophy in the chrysanthemum section "Tracy Waller," a special class for members only. Mrs. Brenton received the T. W. Mount Perpetual Challenge trophy for highest points in the dahlias class.

Miss Betty Galt won the S.S.I. Society perpetual challenge trophy in the decorative section. Mark Holmes won the Farmers Institute perpetual

Longer Hair

By BARBARA HARTUNG
 The "in" hair color for fall is auburn, and the "in" style is longer, curlier and more feminine than last season's style. This is the fashion forecast of Frederic Jones, a Southern California hair stylist.

Jones is the hair style director for the May Company, a California department store chain. In addition he does hair styling for motion pictures.

Jones expects more women to use more hair colorings this fall, particularly in the auburn tones to go with fashion-dictated browns and blacks of fall apparel. "But, of course, there'll always be blondes — and blondes of all tones," he added.

Jones attributes the increase in the use of hair coloring to better and safer products (many hair colorings are safe enough to use at home) and to the awareness of the public that hair colorings are available and how they can be used. "The most important thing in hair coloring is that the color suits the complexion. If it is against the complexion, it gives an artificial look," says Jones. "For example, a dark-complexioned brunette would have to choose very carefully the proper tone if she wished to become a blonde. Otherwise, it might look unnatural," the good-looking brunette said.

"Women with fair colorings are the lucky ones. They can choose to color their hair nearly any color and have it look natural," Jones said.

Another trend Jones foresees

The longer, softer look for fall with the more natural look.

is an increase in frosting or streaking. "A woman can brighten her hair in this way at only a fraction of the cost and also avoid the problems of retouching," he said.

"We are interested in the total look today. If the woman is well coordinated in her clothes, her hair and her makeup, she projects a well-planned look. And the coordinated look is well within the reach of any woman, Jones believes. "After all, everyone has beauty. Some is just more obvious than others and some comes from within," Jones says. "Hair for fall will be curvier and loopy with a great deal of bounce. We are getting away from the short geometric design and into a more soft look," Jones predicts. "But regardless of the trend, wear what is most becoming to you. Any becoming style can be adapted to the current trend and given an up-to-date look," he said.

In hair design the cut is perhaps the single most important factor, says Jones, because here proper balance is created. Influencing the style of haircut: a woman should have her weight, her height, the length and width of her neck, the texture and body of the hair as well as the woman's personality, says Jones.

St. Andrew's Makes $1,462 at Bazaar

The big annual bazaar put on by St. Andrew's Cathedral Women's League Saturday realized $1,462.

Held at the Club Tango, the affair was convened by Mrs. H. H. James, league president, and opened by Miss Genevieve Hartnell. Miss Hartnell was a member of the original league.

In keeping with the centennial theme, women of the league wore old-fashioned gowns trimmed with lace and ribbons and road-brimmed hats decked with flowers.

Stalls offering everything from Christmas dolls to freshly baked pies and a big black poodle were set up around the room.

Little girls' eyes sparkled as they gazed at the dolls, hand-made doll clothes and the big black poodle being sold at the Christmas stall convened by Mrs. G. Burns.

Boxes of home-made candies, taste-tempting chunks of fudge and bags of crunchy peanut brittle at the candy stall made this a popular stop. It was convened by Mrs. Grace Horgan, assisted by Mrs. C. E. Rivers and Miss Marian Schellinck.

The babies' wear stall attracted a lot of admiring comments as well as enthusiastic buyers. Convened by Mrs. D. B. McKimmi under the auspices of the Portuguese and Italian Ladies, it offered everything from frilly dresses to tiny sweaters and overalls. Two knit sweaters which had been sent from Italy for the bazaar were soon sold.

The delicatessen stall did a thriving business, offering taste-tempting salads, meat pies, sausage rolls and home-made preserves. Mrs. F. Lessard was convenor, assisted by Mrs. G. Hewitt and Miss Eliana Mathieu. A gigantic ham was the raffle.

The home-cooking stall attracted lots of hungry customers. Freshly-baked apple pie, chocolate brownies and lots of cookies, cakes and pastries kept the convenor, Mrs. R. Desllet, and her assistant, Miss Jean Tinavez, busy making sales.

The decision to buy a brand-new apron was an easy one at the sewing stall, convened by Mrs. Dorothy Rivers, assisted by Mrs. M. McLaren.

St. Andrew's Girl Guides had a Lucky Seven stall. Miss Virginia Hanley was the convenor.

Mrs. W. Martin was convenor for the Handicapped Children's Clinic stall where brightly-painted ceramics made by the children were on sale.

Victoria attics had been diligently searched to unearth the vases, cups and saucers and jewelry that attracted business at the attic treasures stall.

The major attraction was the chicken hot plate luncheon. Among the many to enjoy this meal were Mrs. H. H. James, Bishop Remi de Roo, Miss Hartnell and Msgr. M. T. O'Connell, who were seated at the head table.

Bowls of roses, dahlias and chrysanthemums decorated the tables and convenor Mrs. C. Edwards acted as hostess to the visitors in the dining area. She was assisted by Mrs. N. Wunderlech, Mrs. N. Leckenby, Mrs. A. Rendle, Mrs. T. H. Duncan, Mrs. C. Hinchcliffe, Mrs. P. Hartnell, the Misses Carol Breckne, Sylvie Vaelk, Donna and Carol Wunderlech.

Mrs. W. Rogers was convenor for the luncheon, assisted by Mrs. E. Lynch and Mrs. W. Milligan, who was in charge of dessert.

The afternoon tea provided a pleasant interlude for shoppers. It was convened by Mrs. M. Fletcher, assisted by Mrs. N. D. Daggett.

Others who helped make the affair a success were Mrs. B. Fogden, who was in charge of ticket sales; Mrs. M. Davis, lunch tickets; Mrs. P. Budd, Mrs. C. Galvin, Mrs. K. Britton, tombola tickets.

A $25 scrip donated by Horgan's Carpets was offered as the door prize.

Treasurer for the bazaar was Mrs. P. Bourne, assisted by Miss Virginia Hanley.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

On Thursday this week His Royal Highness Crown Prince Harald of Norway arrives in Victoria where he will be a guest at Government House. That evening, the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes will give a dinner in honor of His Royal Highness.

Shower

A miscellaneous shower was held for Miss Linda Breitenbach whose marriage to Mr. Leonard Hanson takes place Oct. 7 in Prince George at the home of Mrs. Isobel Osborne, Avebury Street. The gifts were sent, unopened, to the bride in Prince George. Guests included Mrs. Ruth Breitenbach, Mrs. Alice Baitte, Mrs. Inez Stewart, Mrs. Syrtle Smith, Mrs. Hilda McGregor, Mrs. Nora Oldfield, Mrs. Bonna Campbell, Miss Corinne Osborne, Miss Marcia Breitenbach. The groom being a printer, the gifts were arranged in a newspaper covered container topped with an antique typewriter.

Mouth Lines Fade Away

The quicker mouth lines ... and crow's feet around the eyes ... disappear, the quicker you'll look younger! You, too, may know the thrill of a second debut when you try 2nd Debut, the lotion-like substance containing CEF 600. Applied nightly and before daily make-up, 2nd Debut Liquid pushes so much moisture under the skin, it plumps mouth lines and crow's feet up and out. Make-up goes on smooth and easy. No wonder mothers say they've enjoyed a 2nd Debut. You can also get "2nd Debut" with CEF 1200 for double strength moisturizing action. Ask for 2nd Debut by name at drug and department stores and see almost immediate results that are absolutely astonishing.

You can depend on us

We receive requests like that every day. From women recently widowed. From women whose children have settled in other cities. And from single women looking forward to retirement from a rewarding business career. To women like these, the world of finance is often a strange and frightening place. So they come to Canada Trust. And find a very dependable someone indeed.

We're a financial supermarket

Just as food sustains you physically, Canada Trust keeps you going and growing financially. A supermarket caters to your need for food. We assist in every area of your financial life.

But not with some self-styled expert's "get rich quick" schemes.

At Canada Trust you have the solid financial experience of qualified officers, constantly working on your behalf. And no matter how large or small a sum you bring to Canada Trust, we accept it "in trust". Your individual financial requirements are our first consideration.

Let's get that money working

How well you live depends largely on how hard your money is working for you. And at Canada Trust it works, in various high-income ways.

For the bulk of your money, you may consider our Canada Trust Investment Fund that has shown an average annual increase of 9% since its inception eight years ago. Or Canada Trust Investment Certificates that also pay excellent interest rates.

"Dear Canada Trust, I need someone to depend on for financial advice."

9% increase sound like a lot?

It is. Yet that's the average annual increase in value of each equity unit in our Canada Trust Investment Fund over the past eight years. (By reinvesting the dividends, money you had put in the fund eight years ago would virtually have doubled by now!)

This fund is designed to provide investors like yourself with a diversified portfolio of stocks, giving protection from the deteriorating purchasing power of the dollar.

So, for a high return, there's the Canada Trust Investment Fund. It's like having your money professionally managed by your own personal investment counsellor. And what's more, you pay no commissions to salesmen. Every dollar you invest goes directly to work for you.

And for ready cash

You may want to put some money aside for a vacation, or a sudden emergency, or a gift you have in mind for your grandchildren, or nieces or nephews. That money belongs in a Canada Trust Savings Account with dividends. Pays 5% interest, and that's a nice bit of extra cash when you need it.

Investment Certificates

They're like bonds registered in your name, and they pay a guaranteed rate of interest. You can buy them in amounts from $100 up to thousands of dollars, and they're designed for people who either want a regular income, or want to put some money to work for a short time.

Trust Certificates are for investments of from 1 to 5 years, and the high interest can be used as regular income or collected when the certificate matures.

Or you can buy Canada Trust Savings Certificates at a discount, and receive full value for them in seven years. (A certificate that costs $700 now will be worth $1,000 in seven years.)

"Fringe benefits," too

Canada Trust directs a great many financial services to your personal needs. For instance, Estate Analysis and Executor-Trustee Service. This safeguards your estate, giving your beneficiaries the best possible protection and avoiding unnecessary taxes.

We also provide Safe Deposit Boxes for the protection of securities, documents, jewellery and other valuables.

We know our business

An intensive staff training programme sees to it that there is always a qualified officer to advise you on financial matters at Canada Trust. He welcomes your questions. Just ask to see the manager of your nearest Canada Trust office. (We stay open longer hours for your convenience.)

Or write to the address below. We'll send you the information you request by return mail.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT

As I pointed out last spring, the gladiolus is one of the easiest of all flowers to grow — providing you buy fresh bulbs every year. There is no trick in growing them; the only sticky part of gladiolus culture comes after the plants have finished blooming.

After collecting your dividends in the form of armfuls of glorious flower spikes, there is a very human tendency to neglect the bare, uninteresting plants, yet the four-week period after blooming is the most important time in the life cycle of the plant. This is when the new bulb is forming and plumping itself up, storing away a reserve of food to get it away to a good start next spring, and it is MOST important to keep your glads growing thriftily through this period.

Newcomers to gladiolus growing find it hard to understand that the bulbs they buy and bung into the ground in the spring last for only one single season. Mind you, this doesn't mean that your money goes down the drain, for the gladiolus plant, after exhausting all the goodness in the bulb and draining it dry, proceeds to manufacture a new bulb which sits up on top of the old, worn-out one.

The plant does most of the plumping up of the new bulb in the period immediately following the fading or the cutting of the flower spike, and it needs a minimum of three to four weeks to make a reasonably plump bulb. This is a minimum, though, and while at a pinch you could dig your glads a month after blooming, it should be remembered that the bulb continues to swell as long as the leaves remain green and functioning. The more extra time you can give them, the bigger your bulbs will be when taken up.

Our fellow gardeners in the inland parts of the country don't have much choice in lifting time, for early frost kills the foliage, and once these "food factories" go out of business, the bulbs can get no bigger. Most garden books recommend leaving the bulbs in the ground until after the first hard frost, or until after the leaves turn brown.

These instructions are not very helpful in our part of the world, for it is quite possible, given a pleasant, open fall, for the leaves to remain green until Christmas or later, and of course at that time of the year the garden is usually a sea of sloppy mud. The limiting factor here is the condition of the ground, for digging gladiolus bulbs and getting them dried off can be a miserable chore after the fall rains have begun in earnest.

For this reason, I "fly by the seat of my pants," so to speak, disregarding the calendar but keeping one eye cocked on the weather forecasts, ready to hoick out my glads at the first indication of prolonged rain. If the weather permits me to leave them in the ground until the end of October, up they come anyway, for there isn't enough comp in the November sun to operate the food factories, and the bulbs are not likely to get any bigger.

I suppose I should be less vague about lifting time, for I know the novice gardener would very much prefer to be given a firm date rather than relying upon his unformed judgement, but it is rather like trying to tell a stock market speculator when to sell a mining stock on a rising market. You would like to get out at the peak, but you can take quite a beating if you leave it too long.

If the idea of living dangerously doesn't appeal, my suggestion would be to dig your glads between the middle and end of October. Try to pick a sunny day with a brisk wind blowing — what a housewife would call a good drying day — and if the soil is on the dry side too, so much the better, although this isn't too important.

ART BUCHWALD Finds All Bases Covered

Problems Studied Away

WASHINGTON — One of the ways to solve acute problems in the United States is to study them. At this writing there are probably more committees making more studies of more problems than at any time in history.

Professor Heinrich Applebaum has just completed a study on people who make studies, and the results are fascinating.

Professor Applebaum said, "I discovered that the average person making a study today has had five years of college, is married, has 1.6 children, earns $15,650 a year, lives in the suburbs, plays tennis or golf on weekends and believes in God."

"He will spend an average 8.5 months working on a study, 2.6 months discussing it in committees, 3.9 months writing a report which will be typed up by 5.6 secretaries and then it will be printed up and distributed to 1,250 people, of which 5.9 persons will read it in its entirety."

"That isn't too many people."

"It's a lot considering that only one out of every 23.6 reports are ever acted upon."

"What happens to the rest of them?"

"They're filed away and used as reference for other people who will be asked to make a future study on the same subject."

"That sounds rather discouraging."

"On the contrary, the main purpose of a study is not to solve a problem, but to postpone the solution of it in hopes that it will go away. If it doesn't go away, at least people will have forgotten about it by the time the report comes out."

"Could you give me an example?"

"Well, at the moment the riots in Detroit are under study. A blue-ribbon panel of politicians appointed by the President is making a report which will probably be delivered sometime in 1968.

"By then some other city will probably be burned down, and nobody will give a damn what happened in Detroit. They'll demand to know what happened in Philadelphia or Cleveland or whatever city blows up next."

"The President will then appoint another commission to study that riot, and by the time they get their report in, the President will have to appoint another committee to study what went wrong in Washington, D.C., or Oakland, Calif."

"A study group's work is never done."

"I should say not. Making studies is now the third largest industry in the United States. Not only are large monies spent in making studies, but great sums are spent attacking studies that people don't agree with. Whenever the public health service issues a report on smoking, the tobacco industry immediately attacks it with a study of its own."

"Even the National Guard doesn't like to be studied," I said.

"That's the beauty of the business. Every study demands a counter-study to refute its facts."

"Professor Applebaum, your report will make a great contribution to the study of studies. Can you tell me why you decided to do it in the first place?"

"I work for a foundation, and everything we founded to study was being studied by somebody else. This was the only subject left that no one had made a study on."

"Has anybody read it?"

"My wife thinks it's the best thing I've ever done."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Joel Grey Steps Up

NEW YORK (NANA) — Producer Harold Prince set Hollywood Oscar-winner (Zorba the Greek) Liza Minnelli for the London production of Cabaret — the Little Liza role. When Joel Grey called me, I asked, "Why aren't you going to London?" He stole all the notions, plus a Tux for the New York production. "I was desperate to go. I'm really heartbroken," he replied, "but I had to move on to the next step." Joel, elevated to star billing in Cabaret, remains with the show until the end of the year, then starts rehearsals for George M. in which, of course, he plays the late Mr. Cohen. "I sing all of the songs — Give My Regards To Broadway, Yankee Doodle Dandy. It's what I've been waiting for. You're a marvellous witch. You predicted it all." It was easy.

The Three Nikolas lost the baby they wanted so much. Theo recently completed, On the Other Side of the Mountain... Red Buttons, now singing for his supper at the Latin Quarter, has settled his family in the plush apartment in New York that he kept during his filming in Hollywood. He likes it here and is looking for a Broadway musical... Shari Lewis is tiny but her earning capacity is large — $15,000 for one appearance at the New England state fair in Springfield, Mass.

Alex Cohen is going to town for his Mariene Dietrich opening, Oct. 9, with a very formal party for her afterwards at the Rainbow Room. Mariene says she is nervous about making her New York debut on stage. She needn't be. I've seen her act several times in Europe and it's just about the most polished professional hour I've ever seen.

In Herbert Wilcox's autobiography, published in London, he mentions that Michael Wilding came to him and said, "I'm in love with Mariene, and Elizabeth (Taylor). I don't know what to do." We know what he did... Miss Taylor and Richard Burton are interested in the movie version of Man of La Mancha. And if they are interested, they'll get it.

Joan Diller is the only member of the original off-Broadway cast who will repeat her role on stage in London opposite Keith Michell, who is just polishing off his part as Deborah Kerr's lover in Prudence and the Pill.

If anyone comes up with a good movie role for Ava Gardner, who has been meandering around Manhattan, she'll take it. Ava has retired a couple of times, but she's still too young to merely go on the town, or twiddle her thumbs at home.

Jim Arness, five times a millionaire, at least, from his 10 years of Gunsmoke, is reported wanting more money to remain with the series. Jim is in a new time slot and I doubt whether this is the time to ask for a raise and frankly I don't believe he has. He will remain with the series for as long as the series remains with him.

That Liza Turner. She makes a firm declaration one day, and it's all changed the next. Which is leading up to the fact that her estranged husband, Bob Easton, was invited to move from her bathhouse, at Malibu, into the main house. End of separation. But it could change tomorrow and Bob is keeping some pajamas and slippers in the bathhouse.

That loud and lovable laughing lady, Phyllis Diller, will follow with a new TV series if her special on Oct. 25 is a success.

Bob Hope won't tell his closest friend but he does sometimes take a holiday. He was cruising on a yacht off Vancouver Island with Dolores, his bride of 34 years. Before departing, Dolores showed up for the taping of Bob's Oct. 16 Chrysler special with a couple of very attractive ladies — Helen Hayes looking like a little bird and Irene Dunne looking stately as always.

Amateurs Can't Win

SYDNEY HARRIS

The other evening, I overheard a man in a restaurant lecture a younger man (evidently his brother) on the evils of gambling. The younger man, it seems, had just returned from a disastrous pilgrimage to Las Vegas.

His brother dwelt at length on the "immorality" of gambling (an approach which carries little weight with the young), and then suggested that most, if not all, gambling houses are crooked.

Having met, in my salty days as a reporter, a number of professional gamblers, I could have told the man that his latter argument was not necessarily true. A well-run gambling house is not crooked; it does not need to be.

The only effective sermon I have ever heard against gambling houses is simply this: that professional gamblers don't gamble. They play odds, or percentages, and the rigid structure of mathematics permits them to pick up all the money in the long run.

A gambling house is quite willing to operate on a favorable advantage of 5 per cent, and can do enormously well with this slight edge. A professional gambler in a poker game will never buck the odds — except for advertising purposes — and thus will always win in the end.

Most players are pathetically ignorant of the odds, even when playing so-called poker or bridge at home. They always think the odds are much greater or much less than they really are.

Not long ago, I ran across a couple of interesting "probability" problems posed by Ernest Ruben of the U.S. Department of Commerce, which illustrate this point. He first brings up the so-called "birthday problem." Suppose you are in a room of people, and want to bet that at least two of them have a common birthday — that is, the same month and date of the month. How many people do we need in the room to make this probability more than 50 per cent?

Most non-statisticians would say 100 people or more — but the answer is only 23. With 23 persons in a room, the probability is .807 that two will have a common birthday. Again, if three cards are drawn at random from a well-shuffled deck, what is the probability that one of the cards is an ace, a 10 or a deuce? You may expect the odds to be small, but they are better than even at .553. With these figures on their cuffs, how can the gambling houses lose?

Tough Rules Cripple Indian Housing Plan

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Red tape, delay, a series of rules, and lack of information in the hands of local real estate men, may kill the government's ambitious off-reserve housing program.

On paper, the idea sounds terrific, offering a minimum of down payment required by the Indian purchaser, and eventually a $5,000 contribution by the government which does not have to be repaid.

The only trouble is to date only two such applications have been approved in this area. Only half a dozen have been filed.

"I feel the non-Indians are getting to hate us, because they hear what wonderful things the government is doing for us," an Indian mother said.

"If they only knew it, despite the government's big headline stories, the grants are almost impossible to get."

The bureaucratic term for the problem is that the regulations are "self-limiting."

They are in little danger of a good sell campaign by local realtors. Of three asked by off-reserve housing grants available to Indians for home purchases," not one realtor had heard of them.

Regulations that might not appear difficult for the average white man to meet, can be frustrating for many of the Indian applicants.

For the older Indian, the very fact he must take an active part in the application, is contrary to the paternalistic attitude with which he has grown up and to which he has become accustomed.

The applicant must find a house for sale which meets his needs, and dig up his own down payment.

Fortunately, the down payment is smaller than other homeowners would pay, and is based on the prospective purchaser's annual income.

The annual income is the next problem. One basic regulation demands that the applicant have permanent employment.

And he must have had this employment for some time.

Seasonal logging and fishing do not usually permit him to qualify under the permanent employment regulations, unless he owns his own fishboat or has a steady logging contract.

Even if he has a steady job, and the necessary funds, he needs a statement from his employer and a good credit reference.

Schools Choose Indian Fables

Alberni author-artist George Clutesi's book of B.C. coast Indian fables will soon be read in elementary classrooms all across the province.

The department of education has chosen Son of Raven, Son of Deer for the Grade 4 language arts program.

Mr. Clutesi, 62, a member of the Tse-Shah tribe, has seen his book sold out of its first printing of 5,000 since publication last June.

Gray's Publishing of Sidney has ordered a second edition of 5,000.

It is believed the first time in Canada that a book about Indians by an Indian has been included in school curriculum.

The government has called for bids on 40,000 copies of the Clutesi book, which is approximately the number of children in each B.C. elementary grade.

I'm very happy this has come," said Mr. Clutesi in Alberni Monday.

"I think Indian culture is on the way to being preserved. There is a lot of work to be done yet."

The fables in Son of Raven, Son of Deer were told to Mr. Clutesi by his late father, last storyteller of the Tse-Shah tribe.

Recognition has come late to the long-time campaigner for preservation of Indian culture.

He held a showing of his art at the University of Victoria last winter and painted a mural at Expo in the spring.

One education department official said Monday:

"We didn't choose the book because it was written by an Indian. We chose on its merit."

After he has found a suitable house to purchase, and rounded up the required documents, he is ready to make his application through his local Indian Affairs office.

If all goes well, and human accidents, like poor flooring or burial in the bottom of a basket don't occur, he may get his reply, as speedily as three weeks, or a distant as eight weeks.

If it is the latter case, the house he had his eye on has probably already been sold to someone else.

He can then start again, if he can find another house to buy in a suitable price range.

Island Waters Kill Two Men

NANAIMO — Two men drowned near Nanaimo, one in a lake, one at sea.

Andrew Schueller, 44, Burnaby was dragged behind his sailboat, Cognac, for four hours Saturday night before his body was pulled from the waters of Georgia Strait at 11 p.m.

The second drowning occurred after a man stood up in an eight-foot boat.

Allan Hamilton, 27, was found floating beneath the surface of Barsby Lake by two skin divers of Nanaimo Search and Rescue.

When the Cognac was five miles northeast of Entrance Island, the tug Bonacord Two activated, after being signalled SOS by flashlight.

The pitching seas prevented the tug from coming too close, but it radioed for assistance to Vancouver, which informed Nanaimo, and the coast guard vessel Racer was dispatched.

Mr. Schueller was pronounced dead on arrival at Nanaimo regional hospital.

Sunday Mr. Hamilton, 27, and Mrs. Ronald William Simpson, 750 Franklin, and Danny Adam, 805 Dogwood went fishing on the lake.

Mr. Adam stayed near shore fishing from a raft, while the other three went out in the plywood skiff.

Mr. Hamilton stood up, lost his balance, and tipped the boat over, as he fell into the water.

Mrs. Simpson helped his wife to shore, while Mr. Adam doffed his clothes and swam out to Mr. Hamilton, only to have the man slip through his fingers.

Mr. Adam returned to shore, and ran for help. The Inquest will be held Oct. 11.

Suspensions Effective

VANCOUVER (CP)—Charges of impaired and drunk driving dropped 50 per cent in the Lower Mainland area during August as a result of the provincial government's new roadside suspension law, deputy chief John Fisk says.

Mr. Hamilton stood up, lost his balance, and tipped the boat over, as he fell into the water.

Mrs. Simpson helped his wife to shore, while Mr. Adam doffed his clothes and swam out to Mr. Hamilton, only to have the man slip through his fingers.

Mr. Adam returned to shore, and ran for help. The Inquest will be held Oct. 11.

Appeal Hopes Look Good

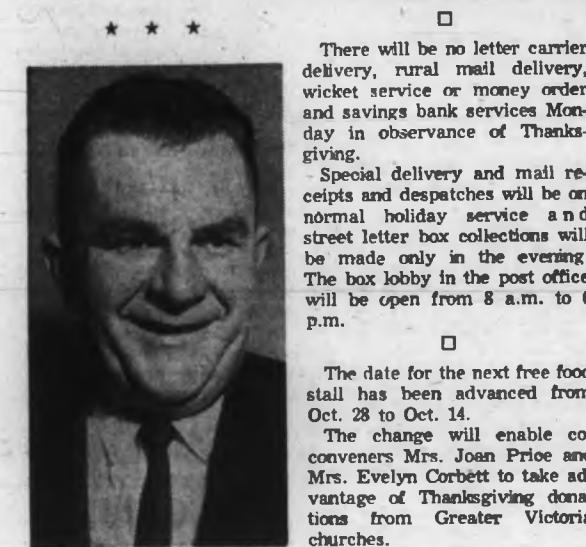

Around Town

A Red Feather-Red Cross official expressed "cautious optimism" Monday that this year's United Appeal target of $600,000 will be met.

Graham McCall, president of Community Chest board of directors said this attitude could be taken because of returns received so far. But he warned division chairmen, in a meeting at the Imperial Inn, time is running short and the business canvass must be completed before the 2,000 residential canvassers take to the field.

G. F. Auchinleck, general campaign manager, announced $81,064 had actually been received, as part of contribution promises totalling $175,827.75, by the beginning of October.

The commander of NATO's six-nation mobile force, Maj.-Gen. Gilles Turcotte, 49, will visit

Trainees Will Try Woodland

The wilderness of Vancouver Island will be tackled for four days beginning today by 21 officer trainees of Venture training school at CFB Esquimalt.

All of them Canadian Aircrew officer candidates, the young men will be trucked to a base camp 12 miles west of Duncan, then set off for three days of mountain hiking.

They will each carry a 50-pound pack containing food and survival equipment, a Canadian Forces spokesman said on Monday.

Expedition training brings out leadership qualities, he explained.

Safety Units Combine

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Highway Safety Council and the National Safety League agreed Monday to unite. The new body will be known as the Canada Safety Council and the two safety organizations have elected a common executive headed by Norman Bell of Toronto.

'Campus Doomed'

COURTENAY — A petition is being circulated in Campbell River, calling for another vote so that district can opt out of the college plan, says Ald. Harry Harris.

He said "the downfall of the regional college has come about because of failure of the co-ordinating committee to adhere firmly to the Marsh Report."

"If a branch campus had been definitely agreed at a definite date, say three or four years after the main campus had been built or when we had 400 or 500 students, Courtenay and Campbell River would have supported the plan wholeheartedly."

He said the petition in Campbell River is now being circulated because the situation has changed, and Campbell River is geographically isolated from the college district.

Ald. Harris said Monday night, "150,000,000 in assessment has gone with the loss of Alberni, North Island and Courtenay."

"Therefore taxes are now not 2.5 mills, but closer to 4 mills, and a branch campus is definitely out of the question for Campbell River."

He predicted Campbell River will either opt out now, or vote to defeat the referendum.

He said "There is still time to save the college."

Ald. Harris called upon the co-ordinating committee to "give us a definite agreement on a branch, and win support of both Campbell River and Courtenay."

He said if the district cannot reach agreement on a branch, Courtenay and Campbell River will probably combine for a small local college.

He said support from the six participating districts was 73 per cent Saturday. Since the money bylaw will need 60 per cent, if Campbell River goes against the bylaw, "the college will certainly be defeated."

Dead Engineer's Train Went for Miles Alone

LONDON (UPI)—It's a long, long grade from Brentwood to Romford, and the engineer was dead on the line.

Only a quick-thinking conductor averted a wreck.

Raymond Burrell, 33, took the 10:05 out of Southend on time Sunday night, bound for London, 40 miles away.

One hundred passengers were in the express as it pulled out of Brentwood, the halfway station, and started off for Harold Wood, Gidea Park and Romford.

Burrell's left hand was on the brake lever, his right on the "dead man's throttle" which automatically stops the train if the engineer isn't holding it down. In theory.

They were going down grade at 60 miles an hour, brakeman Arthur Toop, 57, noted as the Harold Wood station flashed by.

Toop grabbed for the emergency brake. As the train slowed down, he ran through the train and found the engineer's cab empty.

The express shuddered to a halt at Gidea Park, four miles from the spot Toop pulled the brake.

Burrell's body, battered and bruised apparently by the fall from the cab, was found beside the line miles back between Brentwood and Harold Wood.

It was unclear how he had fallen from the locomotive but British Railway officials were even more concerned to learn how the train could have continued, gathering speed, without a hand on the throttle.

They said it had not been held down by an elastic band — a trick of some old-time engineers when they wanted to eat.

Railway spokesman Edward Lyon said the train would have been stopped automatically, even if the "dead man's throttle" was held down, if it had passed any red or yellow signals.

Melody, Dynamic Control In All-Beethoven Program

By BERT BINNY

The Victoria Symphony has embarked on its 27th season. It was a successful launch-in, presaging good things to come through the 1967-1968 voyage.

The ship has a new captain and, indeed, a new first officer with Laszlo Gati making his first appearance as conductor and Raymond Owens as concertmaster. Both are impressive performers.

ALL BEETHOVEN

The first program, Sunday afternoon and Monday night, was devoted to the works of Beethoven and whether this concentration on one composer is a good and beneficial thing must remain a matter of opinion.

The guest artist was violinist Pina Carmirelli who first attracted attention 30 years ago at Cremona in her native Italy.

She has appeared at such world famous musical centres as Carnegie Hall, in New York and Royal Festival Hall, in London, as well as with the chief symphony orchestras in Bucharest, Sofia, Budapest, Prague and Warsaw.

SUPERB TECHNICIAN

Mme Carmirelli is a superb technician but, over and above this and as exemplified in the second movement of Beethoven's violin concerto in D, she has the gratifying capacity to produce the kind of sound that is pure melody.

The program opened with the Leonore Overture No. 3 and finished with the fifth symphony.

A most notable feature of the orchestral performance was the dynamic control exhibited. It is relatively easy for a large orchestra to play loudly and create a lot of sound: it is something else for it to produce balanced and effective pianissimos. This the Victoria Symphony is fully capable of doing and it is a delight to hear.

They, like Mme Carmirelli, can also be very melodious which is another feather in the orchestral cap. And, when required, they are suitably incisive.

The next pair of concerts take place on Oct. 22 and 23 and on this occasion, the entire program is occupied with the composition of Tchaikovsky.

However, before that on Oct. 18, the first of six recitals takes place at the McPherson Playhouse, the artist being Russian pianist, Marina Medvani.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator). Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Great excuse for an off-season spree in Europe

Old photos can stir nostalgia, bringing you happy memories of familiar faces and places grown dim with the passing years... of family and home left behind in Britain or the Continent. Or they can arouse your curiosity to know at first hand the ties of heritage... of distant relatives and the "old country".

Whichever the case, they can provide you with the best of excuses for an off-season visit to Britain and the Continent—and for a great holiday! Think of the fun of renewing family ties. Of exploring old haunts. Of discovering for yourself the enchanting places you've always dreamed of, or heard so much about. Remember, Europe will be free of summer tourists. You'll be able to see it as it really is after the crowds have gone home. And, of course, prices will be at their lowest.

Air Canada fares will be at their lowest, too. In addition, the first-ever weekly Western Arrow nonstop flight from Vancouver to London in Fall/Winter as well as 7 other weekly flights to Britain and Continental Europe will make things easier still. Your travel agent can provide you with full details on these, as well as tour prices (Individual or Group Inclusive Tours) and all of Air Canada's services including Air Canada's "Fly Now—Pay Later" plan and "Extra Cities Plan". He can also provide assistance in planning your trip to Britain or anywhere in Europe. Call him... or call Air Canada at 382-5144

Carla

Crash Victim's Birthday Wish:

I Wanted to Be Rescued Today

REDDING, Calif. (UPI) — Young Carla Corbus made a birthday wish last spring in a makeshift diary huddled with her mother in the wreckage of a light plane on a snowclad peak. It never came true.

"Today is my 16th birthday," she printed in the diary. "I wanted to be rescued today."

That was 50 days after the March 11 crash of the plane piloted by her stepfather, Alvin Oien, 58. The poignant note was followed four days later by a final entry in the diary, on May 4:

"It's a bright and drippy, drippy day. We are completely soaked."

The diary and the skeletons

of Carla and her mother, Phyllis, were found scattered near the wreckage Sunday. No trace was found of Oien. The diary reported he had attempted to go for help.

A coroner's party set out in the rain Monday to seek Oien's remains.

The small, single-engine plane smashed into a five-foot-deep snowbank on the side of Bully Chop Mountain, 35 miles west of this northern California logging centre. The flight was from Portland, where Oien owned a hotel, to San Francisco to visit his son Alvin, Jr., 32, a Delta Airlines pilot.

The plane crashed 6,000 feet up the mountain and just over a mile from an unused dirt road — hidden under the snow.

The diary said the family saw only two days of sunshine during a spring of storms which hid the wreck from search planes. Snow was on the ground until June.

The first entry, on the day of the crash, said: "On leg of journey to Red Bluff (Calif.). Plane on left side in snowbank, 12:15 p.m. Fuselage broken. Door ajar. Windows on right side were broken as well as windshield."

The diary, with entries by both mother and daughter, then described the injuries suffered in the crash.

Al suffered a cut on the chin, three cuts on the forehead, a broken arm,

crushed ribs on the right side, and "pain in his vertebrae." Phyllis was "delirious one day," suffering a broken left arm, cuts of the right hand, a broken left ankle and many cuts and bruises, plus frost bitten feet.

Five days after the crash, the diary said Oien left the crash scene.

"Al shouted OK. He crossed the gully. He was on his way for help."

A week later, an entry written by Mrs. Oien said: "Fear Al did not make it for help. Getting weak."

No other mention of Oien was made in the diary, kept in the back of an airman's guide in the Cessna 195.

Three days after the crash, Carla tried to walk through the snow but turned back.

"She returned because it was snowing and foggy and no visibility," the diary noted dispassionately. "Her feet were frozen and she lost her shoes."

She tried again a short time before her stepfather went for help. The diary noted the snow was "too deep and frozen."

The diary said they melted snow for water but made only one reference to food — the

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Sharp will set the stage for a $1,000,000,000 cut in government spending in a belt-tightening message to Parliament Wednesday.

His speech, according to reliable sources here, will leave no doubt that, if this ruthless chopping is not enough, higher taxes will be the next step.

Chatterton

Housing Vote Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The first non-confidence motion in the minority Liberal government since the Commons resumed business a week ago will go to a vote tonight at the end of a two-day money-supply debate.

Moved Monday by Progressive-Conservative George Chatterton of Esquimalt-Saanich, the motion flays the government for raising the maximum interest rate for NHA mortgages to 8 1/2 per cent from 7 1/2 during "a national housing crisis."

As he put it forward, Finance Minister Sharp said the government will not remit the 12-per-cent federal sales tax on building materials in the immediate future, because "we can't afford that."

The tone will reflect serious doubts about the economy, caused by the fallout from the cost of the Vietnam war and U.S. reluctance to raise taxes to pay for it.

The consequence is higher costs and interest rates, felt in Canada and forcing the Canadian government to revise its projected spending.

During the summer, the cabinet worked out a $500,000,000 cut in government spending for the 1968-69 period.

This involved reductions in defence, postponement of the $100,000,000 "Pentagon" building, freezing of extra government money for housing, and delays in CBC capital projects.

NOT ENOUGH

But this cut turned out to be nowhere near enough.

This earlier set of cuts would have reduced the projected deficit for 1968-69 from $1,250,000,000, the largest in history, to $750,000,000, the estimated deficit this year.

When this set was complete, it became clear the U.S. situation was going to have a worse impact in Canada than expected.

The U.S. Congress was dragging its feet on tax increases demanded by President Johnson. And there was no sign of improvement in the Vietnam situation, no easing in the inflationary pressures on the U.S. economy.

SECOND ROUND

"We knew then we had to have a second round of cutting," an official said Monday night.

Sharp will announce specific measures that will be chopped. He will not touch Medicare, which is scheduled to begin July 1 next year.

However, Medicare is in the lap of the provinces. The federal government has only passed enabling legislation to help the provinces operate plans.

His speech may be interpreted by the provinces as an invitation to delay its introduction.

The second round of cuts would trim the deficit to between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000.

This would mean a balance in the government's "national" accounts.

This is the picture when the government includes money it has on hand from the old age security fund, the Canada pension plan, superannuation funds and other items not included in the budget.

Government sources pointed out it is not certain if ways can be found to reduce spending another $500,000,000.

Island Plan Uneconomic?

By IAN STREET

A Vancouver Island regional college, without three school districts which opted out in last Saturday's vote, may not be a viable economic project, Education Minister Peterson indicated Monday.

The minister said he was disappointed three of the nine districts involved voted against participating in the project. He added education department officials will meet shortly with backers of the regional college scheme to discuss the next move. (See also Page 17).

MORE INFORMATION

Mr. Peterson was asked whether the government was anxious to see the project proceed as quickly as possible.

He replied he wanted further information, which would only be forthcoming at the proposed meeting with college supporters, before offering any encouragement "one way or the other."

Reporters then asked the minister if he had doubts about the success of the project as a result of Saturday's vote.

CHANGE IN SIZE

Mr. Peterson said: "I'm talking about the change in size of the area to be served. It has been reduced by the opting out of three districts and we want to know the full effect of this, whether it will still allow a viable, economic regional college."

The questions of how long it will take to get a college into operation, supposing it is found to be still viable, and whether the site should be shifted as a result of the vote are really up to the people of the area to decide, he said.

FINAL SAY

Local authorities must draw up plans and arrange a referendum to approve the necessary funds for building of a college. But the council of public instruction, which is the provincial cabinet, has the final say in whether the college goes ahead.

It came as a shock, Mr. Peterson indicated, that Courtenay turned down participation in the college. He said Alberni and Northern Vancouver Island had been expected to vote no.

JUST AS EASY

Island North, he said, is out of commuting distance with the proposed site of the new college. Therefore it is just as easy for residents there to attend existing facilities in Vancouver or Victoria.

The people of Alberni also have made it clear in the past they objected to the proposed location of the regional college, Mr. Peterson added.

Yugoslavs Hold Eichmann Aide

THE HAGUE (UPI) — An aide to Adolf Eichmann who had been safe in Austria because of his Austrian citizenship was arrested Monday in Yugoslavia and may be sent to The Netherlands to answer war crimes charges.

The Netherlands justice ministry said it had been advised from Belgrade that Erich Rajakovic, 62, had been detained in connection with a Dutch request for extradition under an agreement between The Netherlands and Yugoslavia.

Rajakovic is wanted on charges of helping Eichmann round up Dutch Jews for Nazi gas chambers. There was no indication why Rajakovic left Austria, where he was safe from extradition.

He served 30 months from 1963 to 1965 for an Austrian war crimes conviction and Jewish groups had been watching since then to see if he would leave Austria.

Army-Overst Leader Arrested in Greece

ATHENS (Reuters) — The army-led Greek government Monday placed under house arrest Panayotis Canellopoulos, 64, the premier toppled by the army coup last April, who twice last week defied an order banning political statements.

Canellopoulos said the regime must restore political freedom quickly and its members must "rid the country of their presence" or Greece will be exposed to dangers that might destroy everything.

Royal Navy Not Quite Sure

LONDON (CP) — Canada is reported to be designing a new generation of submarine detection electronics in the hope of landing a big new contract.

HMCS Chaudiere sailed from Halifax Monday bound for the west coast where it will undergo conversion to the equipment mentioned in this article. HMCS Columbia, already here, and another unnamed Restigouche class destroyer are slated for the same conversion.

tract with the Royal Navy but an informant said Monday stiff competition appears to be developing from the United States.

He suggested, however, that a decision on the competing designs is still about a year away.

The Royal Navy said it is fitting at least 15 of its frigates with existing Canadian equipment known as variable depth sonar but still hasn't made up its mind on equipment for another 18.

A navy spokesman estimated the cost of the sonar for each ship at about $750,000. He said the navy is confident some "logistics difficulties" in fitting the equipment can be overcome with the establishment of production and repair facilities in Britain.

The Sunday Telegraph said the sonar, to help a ship detect submarines sheltering under warm water which repels signals sent out by ordinary detectors, showed "indifferent performance" and that an alternative sonar was planned.

A Canadian official here said the report was inaccurate; that the equipment, produced by a Canadian subsidiary of the British EMI Company at Dartmouth, N.S., was the best available.

However, an informant added that a new generation of sonar is under design at Dartmouth and the Royal Navy also is looking at a competitive U.S. design. Costs as well as performance would effect the decision.

Burton Gives Liz Flying Elizabeth

PORTO CONTE, Sardinia (AP) — Actor Richard Burton gave actress-wife Elizabeth Taylor a little surprise gift Monday — a $1,000,000, 10-passenger jet plane that he named Elizabeth. The twin-engine plane joins two Rolls Royces and a 110-foot ocean-going yacht in the Burtons' private transport fleet.

Another Derby Contender Impresses at Sandown

Victoria-horseman Gus Munro needed a bit of encouragement before he entered Handsome Chief in yesterday's feature race at Sandown Park. Because he listened to some mild persuasion he discovered he has an interesting possibility for next Saturday's running of the Sandown Derby.

Munro was a bit loathe to enter the bay colt he has leased from Mr. and Mrs. Mel Lambert of Sidney because of the mud but when it was pointed out that he could never find out if Handsome Chief could run in mud unless he gave the chance, Munro decided to enter.

Well, Handsome Chief did handsomely in the go that was the Sandown racing strip yesterday.

WIN BY A LENGTH

Well-rated by jockey Sandy Shields, Handsome Chief had a look at most of his rivals from the rear for a part of it, made his move at the top turn on the outside and got to the front just after being straightened out for the run home.

He didn't win by much but he had enough to be a length in front of Glencair, a fast-improving three-year-old, at the finish.

Time for the mile run was 1:42.45, which is only two-fifths of a second slower than the time turned in Saturday, over a similar racing surface, by This True in coming out Big Chico, already almost every one's Derby choice.

Handsome Chief, who has been entered for the Derby, was actually bred by the Lamberts in Alberta although the breeder is listed as the Domojowski Bros.

PART OF DEAL

The Lamberts, who came to Vancouver Island in 1964, owned both the sire, Handsome Joey, and the dam, Orange, and part of the deal when they sold Orange to Vete Domojowski Bros.

The Lamberts brought Handsome Chief to their Sidney farm as a yearling, ran him in their colors as a two-year-old with Jim McDougall as trainer, then leased the colt to Munro last April.

Handsome Chief managed two show finishes in five starts as a two-year-old. Yesterday, he won his third race in 14 starts this year and boosted his 1967 earnings to more than $3,700.

ANOTHER POSSIBLE

Another Derby possibility also came to the fore yesterday when Chief Malarkey, a grey colt who had been expected to be good one as a two-year-old, continued to improve late in his second racing year.

Winless in 10 starts before he came to Sandown, Chief Malarkey was bet ten three lengths by Parisienne Pixie the first time out, then galloped by five in a $1,000 claiming race the second time around.

Quite a number of horsemen must be wondering if they didn't miss the bargain claim of the meeting.

Yesterday, Chief Malarkey ran for $2,000, and while it was over the sprint distance of six and a half furlongs, he handled it as if he could go farther in winning by four lengths.

There's still a long way to go but the Kelowna-owned colt is improving and may eventually become as good as had first been hoped.

BREAKAGE: Favorites mopped up yesterday's card, winning the last three races after the day had started with three successive double-figure win prices and a $54.50 quinella — most impressive winner was Swan Lady, who won four here last year. She got out in front on the rail, and that's almost always enough for the game five-year-old. . . . Ron Arnold had himself quite an afternoon, starting with $14.90 and $13.10 victories, respectively, on Jayle and Red Regula and getting his third win on Swan Lady. And he didn't miss by much on Glencair. . . . Basil Frasier was there again twice, on Chief Malarkey and Holo Fire, to make it 18 winners for the 10 days. . . . There were two more claims, Don Jagard taking Frisky Admiral out of the second race for $1,250 and Mrs. P. Evans and D. Allen taking Holo Fire for $300.

mutual handle was a modest $89,335, but it was up almost $3,000 over the same day last year. . . . remember Gladys Ana, the mare who thrilled last year? She's back and could make her first start this week.

Next game: Saturday — Eugene at Victoria.

Victoria Steelers lost Sunday in Sacramento but they played as if they intended to remain part of the Canadian Football League's Western Division.

The 24-10 margin held by the Buccaneers at the finish hardly did justice to the Steelers effort. The Islanders were in Sacramento territory often but they couldn't get that hard yardage and handicapped their own chances by fumbling away possession three times and having two passes intercepted.

"We threw it away," coach Don McKeta said yesterday. "We had five turnovers and that makes it a bit too tough."

McKeta, however, was reasonably well pleased despite the defeat. He felt that he has the personnel and can still win with it.

WILL BE TOUGHER
"We just aren't doing things quite right but we'll be tougher," he said.

Boston Loses Its Cool As Red Sox Win Pennant

It used to be that Boston was known for tea parties, beans and conservatism, but not any more.

Following Boston Red Sox come-from-behind 5-3 victory Sunday over Minnesota Twins that eventually brought the Massachusetts capital its first American League pennant in 21 years, the city is known for Lonborg, Yaz, and Yawkey.

Lonborg, the 22-year-old pitcher of the Sox, lost his shirt in the outburst which followed Rico Petrocelli's game-ending catch, but beat the Twins for the first time in his major league career.

FOUR STRAIGHT HITS

Carl Yastrzemski banged out four consecutive hits and fielded brilliantly as he became the 11th player in baseball history to win the coveted major league triple crown.

And Boston fans went wild, twice—first when their pre-season 100-1 longshots clinched at least a tie for first and then three hours later when the news came that California had eliminated Detroit Tigers from the chase, 8-5, after Tigers had kept their hopes alive with a 6-4 victory in the first game of the doubleheader.

The Minnesota-Boston game was labelled as the pitching duel of the year with Lonborg going against Twin ace Dean Chance, 20-13.

TWINS HAD LEAD

Chance was given a 2-0 lead on unearned runs in the first and third innings but wasn't able to hold off Boston's five-run outburst in the sixth inning.

Lonborg started the rally with a beautifully executed bunt single which caught both Chance and third baseman Cesar Tovar napping.

Barry Adair and Dalton Jones followed with singles to load the bases and then Yastrzemski singled to centre driving Lonborg and Adair with the tying runs.

THREE MORE RUNS

Al Worthington came on in relief of Chance but a late throw by Zoilo Versalles, two wild pitches by Worthington and an error to Harmon Killebrew brought in three more runs.

Twins rallied in the eighth inning when two-out singles by Killebrew, Tony Oliva and Bob Allison brought in Killebrew but Allison was cut down by Yastrzemski trying to stretch his hit into a double, ending the threat.

BOISTEROUS CELEBRATION
The boisterous crowd broke on to the field after Petrocelli caught Rich Rollins' pop fly to end the game and carried Lonborg out to right field before the pitcher was able to break away to the dugout, missing his shirt, hat and part of his shoes.

"This club never quit all year," Yastrzemski said, "and it wasn't going to quit today." Rookie manager Dick Williams and club owner Tom Yawkey were overcome with emotion as they congratulated each other.

Detroit needed to win both games against California to force a playoff for the pennant against the winner of the Twins-Red Sox game.

HITS THREE HOMERS
Willie Horton and Ed Mathews each drove in two runs to spark Tigers 6-4 victory while Twin Castoff Don Mincher drove in three runs on two homers in a losing cause for the Angels.

Mincher was prominent in the second game as well, cracking his third homer of the day to help California take an 8-3 lead after five innings.

Tigers rallied for two runs in the seventh inning but couldn't close the gap and lost out along with Twins and Chicago White Sox, eliminated Friday, in the thrilling four-team race.

In the other final day games, Baltimore shut out Cleveland, 4-0, Washington downed Kansas City, 4-3, and New York edged Kansas City, 4-3.

FOR NATIONAL LEAGUE

World Series bound St. Louis Cardinals kept sharp as the National League also completed its season, dumping Atlanta Braves, 5-2.

In the other games, Pittsburgh trounced Houston, 10-3, Los Angeles tripped New York, 2-1, San Francisco edged Philadelphia, 2-1, and Cincinnati thumped Chicago Cubs, 10-3.

Cardinals Favored

Gibson, Santiago Series' Starters

BOSTON (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals, who breezed to the National League pennant, ruled the favorites over the Cinderella Kids from Boston in the World Series that opens Wednesday at old Fenway Park with Bob Gibson of the Cards facing Jose Santiago, a refugee from Boston's bullpen.

The Red Sox returned to this planet Monday after an overnight journey on a pink cloud of bubbling enthusiasm and faced the future with optimism. As a club that moved from ninth to first in one season, they were not awed by the odds favoring the Cardinals.

Santiago, a 27-year-old Puerto Rican, was the only Red Sox to suit up at Fenway Monday. The Kansas City castoff, who graduated from the relief ranks in the second half of the season, threw for 10 minutes and ran for 20 minutes in the outfield.

The other Red Sox wandered into the clubhouse, one by one to pick up tickets and mail, pinching themselves to be sure they really were in the series.

Dick Williams, the rookie manager who is almost certain to be named Manager of the Year in the American League, gave the players a day off.

The Cardinals, who flew in late Monday, will hold a workout at Fenway this afternoon and will have a chance to see the "Green Monster," as the handy left field wall is known. The Red Sox will practice in the morning.

Buddy LeRoux, Boston trainer, said second baseman Jerry Adair, spiked Sunday, will be able to play Wednesday. Adair was gashed on the left shin while completing a double play, a wound that required seven stitches. Mike Andrews will take his place if he can't make it.

Although Williams said he would not announce a definite lineup until today, it was believed he would play the same men who opened against the Twins Sunday. That would mean Adair at second, Dalton Jones at third, and Ken Harrelson in right field and Russ Gibson catching.

It was expected that the Red Sox would be given permission to make Gibson and pitcher Gary Waslewski eligible for the series, both normally ineligible because they were not with the team Sept. 1. If they are permitted to play by the Cards and commissioner William Eckert, they will replace pitcher Bill Landis, in the army, and Darrell Brandon who has a back injury.

The Cardinals announced that reserve catcher John Romano will be ineligible for the series. By dropping Romano the Cardinals reached the 25-player limit.

The cut was made necessary by the acquisition of relief pitcher Jack Lamare from the New York Mets when pitcher Bob Gibson was sidelined with a broken leg in July.

Right-hander Jim Lonborg, who shared the hero role with Carl Yastrzemski in the clincher, will be the second game pitcher Thursday against Dick Hughes.

After the first two games in Boston, Wednesday and Thursday, there will be an off day for travel before the teams resume Saturday in St. Louis for the next three games in the best-of-seven series.

The new rule for goalkeepers which makes them clear after taking just four steps didn't seem to bother Jim Crawford of University of Victoria Vikings or Kjeld Brodsgaard of Canadian Scottish as the Victoria and district Soccer League first division played its first league matches Sunday.

Both players recorded well-earned shutouts with Crawford making a spectacular dive to stop a penalty shot by George Molson veteran Ced Robb as Vikings won, 5-0. Scottish beat Luckies, 2-0.

Gregg Pearson with two goals, Dave Evans, Barry Cosier, and Paule Poulsen scored for Vikings while Jack Breuker and Franz van Doesburg scored for Scottish.

In the other game played, Victoria West trounced Tallyho, 6-1, as Pete Roberts and Howie Anderson each scored twice. Nirmal and Ranjit Dillon scored West's other goals while John Frazier replied for the losers.

The game between Kickers and Red Lion Inn was postponed as Royal Athletic Park was unavailable.

In second division games, Gorge upset Sidney, 6-0, London Boxing Club downed Colony Inn, 5-3, Island Tug tripped Mayfair Clippers, 2-1, University Norsemen thumped Falcons, 6-2, and Victoria West edged William Head, 4-3.

Gorge (4) — Gary Dickson 3, Ray Bennett 3, Kurt Garza, Dave Sheldrick, Sidney (4).

London Boxing (3) — George Fazio 2, Barry Robbins 2, Rick Baranowski, Colony Inn (2) — Ron Match 1, Dave Fish, Pete Demchak, Ron Dutton, Falcons (2) — Andy Blake, Brian Rice, Head (4) — Len Bayne, Nelson Crisp, Host Sankala, Bruce Rowe, William Head (3) — Joe, Morgan, Papp.

Jack Clackson scored Mustangs' touchdown.

Mike Harold scored two touchdowns for Hornets while Rod Fiddick scored the other. Dave Granlin converted both touchdowns and added a single.

Bob Hammer converted both Oak Bay touchdowns which were scored by Bob White and Jim Forward.

UVic Splits Two Games
University of Victoria earned a split in two weekend ladies field hockey games. The "A" team downed Grasshoppers, 3-1, while Mariners "A" downed the "B"s, 4-0.

Cowichan "A" defeated Mariners "B", 2-1, in the other match.

In a men's game, Shawnigan Lake School shut out Victoria Tigers, 3-0.

Yastrzemski

Triple For Yaz

Carl Yastrzemski, key figure in Boston's drive to the American League pennant, captured the Triple Crown of batting—leading the league in home runs, runs batted in and average—final.

Yastrzemski, 28, became only the 11th man in baseball history to take the coveted title.

He led in batting with a .326 average, runs batted in with 121 and tied with Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew in home runs with 44, all career highs for the left-handed hitting Boston outfielder.

Yastrzemski is recognized as a Triple Crown winner even though he tied in the one category.

Orlando Cepeda of the champion Cardinals lead in RBIs with 111 and Hank Aaron of Atlanta topped the National League in home runs with 39.

Baby, It's Cold Outside

Districts Which Said No Cannot Negotiate

NANAIMO—Dr. Roy MacMillan, head of the Island college committee, has ruled out further negotiations with the three districts which opted out of the regional college area.

He said "Those people in the three districts who feel victorious, will find the taste of victory will become very bitter in the years to come."

The districts were Alberni, Island North, and Courtenay.

He referred to a Courtenay alderman's statement that Courtenay would not be in a better position to negotiate with the college.

"He's absolutely wrong."

"They're in no position to negotiate anything," he said.

The districts which opted out of the college now have nothing to say about it, nor will their needs be considered in the formation of the college.

He then referred to another statement coming out of the Alberni, which suggested the negative vote there had registered a protest against the method of financing the college.

"They haven't registered any protest, all they've done is discriminate against their students."

"I sympathize with the Alberni students," he said.

He said if the people of these districts realize they have made a mistake and want to retract their action, they must now apply to both the department of education and the regional college board, in order to hold another plebiscite.

Only by rescinding their actions through another vote will these districts be enabled to enter into the college district.

Nanaimo School Board Chairman Bill Lerch said Monday, "I am sorry to see these districts drop out."

"I think they have lost something of inestimable value for their young people."

The students in these districts will be faced with even more formidable obstacles in obtaining post-secondary education in B.C. — obstacles which are already virtually insurmountable."

After results of the plebiscite are made known to the department of education, a regional college board will be formed, which will then determine the needs for the college, based on the collective needs of school districts within the college district.

The costs for these needs will be made public, and a money bylaw will be held, which will then be followed by construc-

Dr. MacMillan estimated the college doors could be opened 1970 or possibly before.

With the college needing only to provide for six districts, it will no longer be as large as originally estimated.

The loss of the three districts will be offset by the reduction in the college's size.

Only after education needs of the six affirmative districts have been met, will consideration of the other districts be made.

Housing for students not in the college district will be a major hardship for them; they will not be eligible for subsidized housing, as will commuting students within the district.

The subsidies will be based on estimated costs to house the students at home, with the final pay-out figure approximating that figure.

Nanaimo Committee head Jack Whitlam and Dr. MacMillan ready for the next step.—(Agnes Flett)

No Way Out

'College Vote Was Final'

NORTH COWICHAN—Propaganda for the regional college plebiscite which was held Saturday, has been misleading, according to North Cowichan Coun. George Whittaker.

"It is rather unfortunate that people were told they still will have an opportunity to opt out at the time of the money bylaw."

"They will not have this opportunity."

"Now we know, even if all other districts vote against the money bylaw, Nanaimo can't win the vote."

In the plebiscite Saturday six out of nine school districts north of the Malahat approved to go ahead with planning of the regional college but the site may be south of Nanaimo and not north as originally proposed.

Coun. Whittaker said he favors the concept of regional colleges.

"It is good, but the financing of them leaves much to be desired."

"Nanaimo, for instance, will have the full benefit, and will likely be more willing to pay for it."

He said the other districts committed themselves to the regional college when they voted yes.

"If we win in the Cowichan district feel the cost or the curriculum is unsuitable, we still have to pay for the college."

Local Votes May Fail

"One point worries me. Quite often we had secondary and primary referendums turned down and if we add the regional college to our educational tax roll, we might find that it will be hard for the local school board to get other referendums passed."

"The local taxpayer should not be asked to contribute to the operating cost of the college, although the taxpayers should be paying a part towards the building."

Coun. Whittaker contended the provincial government does not pay 50 per cent, the federal government makes 50 per cent available to the province for post-secondary education.

He said for the regional college the federal government should pay 50 per cent, with the provincial and local governments each contributing 25 per cent to the total cost.

Coun. Whittaker concluded "the idea of having a regional college is good but we must be very clever."

North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton said "I am very pleased with the regional college plebiscite, but we have to have a close look at the financing."

"I support a proposed new site south of Nanaimo."

Duncan Ald. Hamish Mutter stressed the approval of the plebiscite weakened the municipalities' long fight to have school taxes removed from the land.

"It seems to me that the public is not interested in our fight."

"I am in favor of a regional college, but like universities it should be financed by senior governments."

'Campus Doomed'

COURTENAY — A petition is being circulated in Campbell River, calling for another vote so that district can opt out of the college plan, says Ald. Harry Harris.

He said "the downfall of the regional college has come about because of failure of the co-ordinating committee to adhere firmly to the March Report."

"If a branch campus had been definitely agreed at a definite date, say three or four years after the main campus had been built or when we had 400 or 500 students, Courtenay and Campbell River would have supported the plan wholeheartedly."

He said the petition in Campbell River is now being circulated because the situation has changed, and Campbell River is geographically isolated from the college district.

Ald. Harris said Monday night, "The $150,000,000 in assessment has gone with the loss of Alberni, North Island and Courtenay."

"Therefore taxes are now not 2.5 mills, but closer to 4 mills, and a branch campus is definitely out of the question for Campbell River."

Island Scene

Val Pearce of Courtenay enjoys relaxing beside the RCAF's swimming pool at Zweibrücken, West Germany, where her husband Ron is a corporal in the supply section. They have been stationed overseas since being married three years ago. Mrs. Pearce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blawie, still live in Courtenay. Cpl. Edgar Arnet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Arnet of Tofino and grandson of west coast historian and writer Major George Nicholson, has left for the RCAF base at Lahr, West Germany. Cpl. Arnet spent his embarkation leave home with his parents prior to leaving on the tour, his second. His mother is accompanying her son as far as Montreal, where they will visit Expo. . . . Michael Reigh, Campbell River district B.C. Tel manager, has been transferred to Nanaimo.

George Clutesi

Schools Choose Indian Fables

Alberni author-artist George Clutesi's book of B.C. coast Indian fables will soon be read in elementary classrooms all across the province.

The department of education has chosen Son of Raven, Son of Deer for the Grade 4 language arts program.

Mr. Clutesi, 62, a member of the Tse-Shab tribe, has seen his book sold out of its first printing of 5,000 since publication last June. Gray's Publishing of Sidney has ordered a second edition of 5,000.

It is believed the first time in Canada that a book about Indians by an Indian has been included in school curriculum.

The government has called for bids on 40,000 copies of the Clutesi book, which is approximately the number of children in each B.C. elementary grade.

"I'm very happy this has come," said Mr. Clutesi in Alberni Monday.

"I think Indian culture is on the way to being preserved. There is a lot of work to be done yet."

The fables in Son of Raven, Son of Deer were told to Mr. Clutesi by his late father, last story-teller of the Tse-Shab tribe.

Recognition has come late to the long-time campaigner for preservation of Indian culture.

He held a showing of his art at the University of Victoria last winter and painted a mural at Expo in the spring.

One education department official said Monday: "We didn't choose the book because it was written by an Indian. We chose on its merit."

He predicted Campbell River will either opt out now, or vote to defeat the referendum.

He said "There is still time to save the college."

Ald. Harris called upon the co-ordinating committee to "give us a definite agreement on a branch, and win support of both Campbell River and Courtenay."

He said if the district cannot reach agreement on a branch, Courtenay and Campbell River will probably combine for a small local college.

He said support from the six participating districts was 73 per cent Saturday. Since the money bylaw will need 60 per cent, if Campbell River goes against the bylaw, "the college will certainly be defeated."

Tough Rules Cripple Indian Housing Plan

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Red tape, delay, a series of rules, and lack of information in the hands of local real estate men, may kill the government's ambitious off-reserve housing program.

On paper, the idea sounds terrific, offering a minimum of down payment required by the Indian purchaser, and eventually a $6,000 contribution by the government which does not have to be repaid.

The only trouble is to date only two such applications have been approved in this area. Only half a dozen have been filed.

"I feel the non-Indians are getting to hate us, because they hear what wonderful things the government is doing for us," an Indian mother said.

"If they only knew it, despite the government's big headline stories, the grants are almost impossible to get."

The bureaucratic term for the problem is that the regulations are "self-limiting."

They are in little danger of a good sell campaign by local realtors. Of three asked by telephone "What do you know of off-reserve housing grants available to Indians for home purchases," not one realtor had heard of them.

Regulations that might not appear difficult for the average white man to meet, can be frustrating for many of the Indian applicants.

For the older Indian, the very fact he must take an active part in the application, is contrary to the paternalistic attitude with which he has grown up and to which he has become accustomed.

The applicant must find a house for sale which meets his needs, and dig up his own down payment.

Fortunately, the down payment is smaller than other homeowners would pay, and is based on the prospective purchaser's annual income.

The annual income is the next problem. One basic regulation demands that the applicant have permanent employment.

And he must have had this employment for some time.

Seasonal logging and fishing do not usually permit him to qualify under the permanent employment regulations, unless he owns his own fishboat or has a steady logging contract.

Even if he has a steady job, and the necessary funds, he needs two more things. He needs a statement from his employer and a good credit references.

After he has found a suitable house to purchase, and rounded up the required documents, he is ready to make his application through his local Indian Affairs office.

If all goes well, and human accidents, like poor filing or burial in the bottom of a basket don't occur, he may get his reply, as speedily as three weeks, or a distant as eight weeks.

If its the latter case, the house he had his eye on has probably already been sold to someone else.

He can then start again, if he can find another house to buy in a suitable price range.

Straight Sale Draws Flush

NANAIMO—City council has taken exception to the sale of an outspoken newspaper to junior high school students.

Ald. Jack Parker said "I don't believe in censorship, I do have some feeling when this sort of material is sold to junior high school students."

"Two had two or three telephones calls regarding the sale of the paper (Georgia Straight) outside the junior high schools."

He then referred to arguments he attributed to hippies, maintaining the children are going to come in contact with the material.

"I don't agree with the argument," he said.

"It takes a more mature mind to read some of the material that seems . . . rather liberal."

He said the mature mind has the ability to accept or reject those subjects which offend, or suggest immorality.

In discussion, it was disclosed the paper has no licence to sell papers within the city.

"I think if these people had been ignored in the first place, they would have disappeared by now."

"They feed on publicity," ventured Ald. Parker.

Only one of three junior high schools are within city boundaries, and the remaining two schools would be without protection by the city's refusal to grant a licence to the paper.

Alderman Ken Alexander said, "to see teachers effort circumvented right outside the school doors is pretty discouraging."

Ald. Alexander discussed the report of Greater Nanaimo Sewerage and Drainage District to the department of municipal affairs.

Municipalities fear the department is planning to demand installation of sewage disposal units.

"We have a good sewage system in this area," said Ald. Alexander.

"It's in good shape. Our pollution is at a very minimum."

He said nine years ago the district had engineers submit estimates for construction of disposal units, and at that time the northern one would have cost $737,507, while the southern one would have been $887,147.

He estimated present costs for construction would exceed $2,000,000.

Water Is Poor At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS — Although Chemainus water is unsatisfactory, the danger of a shortage has passed, and plans for improvements are being studied by engineers.

North Cowichan public works supervisor Coun. George Whittaker said, "I am sure the danger point has passed, and there will be no shortage this year."

"But we have to do something rapidly to improve the Chemainus water system."

"It is not unlikely that we are running into a cycle of hot summers."

"Even without the rain we are okay now."

"We'll have water for about five weeks."

He said as soon as there was a threat of a possible water shortage, a channel into Holy Oak Lake was lowered from 12 to 30 inches at the outlet, and at the same time a pipe was put into Weddell Lake for an emergency.

Brother in Court After Stabbing

CAMPBELL RIVER—Harry Price, 19, of Cape Mudge, Quadra Island, has been charged with possession of a dangerous weapon.

Police arrested him at the scene of the stabbing of his brother Ralph, at the seater wharf in Campbell River.

When police arrived at the scene a man was seen brandishing a knife. Two constables seized the man and disarmed him.

Price was remanded in custody for a week. Ralph received emergency treatment at Campbell River Hospital where his condition is listed as critical.

Drownings Near Nanaimo

Island Waters Kill Two

NANAIMO — Two men drowned near Nanaimo, one in a lake, one at sea.

Andrew Schueller, 44, Burnaby was dragged behind his sailboat, Cognac, for four hours Saturday night before his body was pulled from the waters of Georgia Strait at 11 p.m.

The second drowning occurred after a man stood up in an eight-foot boat.

Allan Hamilton, 27, was found floating beneath the surface of Barby Lake by two skin divers of Nanaimo Search and Rescue. Mr. Schueller's wife Barbara and friend Elizabeth Berry Austin of West Vancouver struggled unsuccessfully to save him when he fell off his boat while trying to fix some of the rigging.

In his struggle to get back aboard, apparently his foot became tangled in a line thrown to him.

When the Cognac was five miles northeast of Entrance Island, the tug Bon Accord Two arrived, after being signalled SOS by flashlight.

The pitching seas prevented the tug from coming too close, but it radioed for assistance to Vancouver, which informed Nanaimo, and the coast guard vessel Racer was dispatched.

Mr. Schueller was pronounced dead on arrival at Nanaimo regional hospital.

Sunday Mr. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald William Simpson, 750 Franklin, and Danny Adam, 805 Dogwood went fishing on the lake.

Mr. Adam stayed near shore fishing from a raft, while the other three went out in the plywood skiff.

Mr. Hamilton stood up, lost his balance, and tipped the boat over, as he fell into the water.

Mrs. Simpson helped his wife to shore, while Mr. Adam doffed his clothes and swam out to Mr. Hamilton, only to have the man slip through his fingers.

Mr. Adam returned to shore, and ran for help. The inquest will be held Oct. 11.

Ships, Dances, Opening Ceremony

Twin Cities Plan Wedding Celebration

PORT ALBERNI — All signs with the official merger on Oct. 26, amalgamation committee, has a long list of events, ranging from a time capsule to a folk-art festival, from a tree planting ceremony by Lieutenant Governor Pearkes, to synchronized swim displays in the new pool and activity centre which is to be officially opened during amalgamation week.

Celebrations start with a visit by HMS Qu'Appelle on Oct. 20, and end up with special services in local churches on Oct. 29. The annual Trafalgar Ball sponsored by the Navy League is scheduled in the activity centre for Oct. 21.

On Oct. 22 and 23, the centennial championship dog show and time trials will be held in the huge drill hall giving the local kennel club adequate space.

Starting Monday, Oct. 23, the teaching staff of local schools will have a chance to view the pool and activity centre, before they start escorting their charges through it on the 25 and 26. As their contribution to amalgamation week, the Rotary Club of the Albernis has arranged for the famed Don Cossack Chorus to perform at the Alberni District Secondary School, the evening of Oct. 24.

Wednesday and Thursday, a centennial folk art festival will be held at the new centre, under the chairmanship of Dick Christies who headed this spring's highly successful community arts festival in the valley.

At 1 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 26, Mr. Pearkes will officiate at a tree-planting ceremony at city hall, and from there will go on to present the colors at the Port Alberni Legion Hall.

On Friday, Oct. 27, the Powell River Pipe Band sponsored by MacMillan Bloedel will arrive to take part in the celebrations

Friday and Saturday, and groups of children will be visiting the centre, where the art festival continues, throughout the two-day period.

It will be best bibs and tuckers Friday night when an official banquet and dance will be held in the new centre.

Ribbon cutting, unveiling of a plaque and presentation of a scroll to Mr. Pearkes, making him a freeman of the city of Port Alberni, are included on the schedule.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and B.C. Centennial Committee Chairman Lawrie Wallace will be on hand for the event also.

Oct. 28 the public will be able to inspect the $500,000 centennial project, and watch swim displays in the new pool during the morning and afternoon.

Starting at 1:30 p.m. official guests will be given a tour of the many new municipal projects and buildings, including the public safety building, public works yard and the new fire hall.

Starting at 6 p.m. in the evening, there will be a skatarama for the general public in the civic arena, as well as a huge fireworks display scheduled for 8 p.m.

Also at 8 p.m., amalgamation celebrations are scheduled at the Alberni District Secondary School, with Ken Hutcheson, owner of the local radio station, as program chairman.

And when the guests leave the high school at 10 p.m. they will go on to a reception honoring them: from 10 till midnight at the new activity centre.

Sunday calls for a somewhat less hectic schedule, with special services to mark both amalgamation and Canada's centennial in most churches in the morning.

In the afternoon — until 7 p.m. — residents will again be able to view the centre, and watch special water displays in the big new pool.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with new healing substance (Bio-Dyn) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyn is offered in ointment and suppository form call Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with special applicator). Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Children 'Threatened'

Board to Study Traffic Danger

DUNCAN—About 500 elementary and high school students changing buses twice every day at Cowichan High School marshalling point are posing a problem and a three-man team is expected to propose a solution.

Superintendent of Schools Art Jones told the Cowichan School Board Monday the only problem is the large number of students milling around during one-hour periods in the morning and afternoon.

Mr. Jones is one of the three men to investigate the matter. The other two are Trustee Ernest Goddard and acting high school principal Harold Proctor.

Trustee Goddard of the board's transportation committee originally asked to hire a safety officer for bus loading at the high schools. Chairman Dr. Neil Dornig disagreed.

He said "I think this is carrying it a bit too far to have supervision as the collecting point before boarding the buses."

Trustee Jack Efford suggested to ask the student council carrying out control duties, but Trustee Goddard replied it should be done by a mature person who could handle certain situations.

INSTRUCTION
Simplest recommendation came from Trustee Joseph Frumento who said students should be instructed about the situation at their home schools.

Dr. Dornig told the board the Municipality of North Cowichan showed willingness to co-operate in planning of sidewalks for elementary students who will attend Room Road School later this year. The school is now under construction.

Petitions from parents worried about the prospect of their children having to use busy Lakes Road will be submitted at North Cowichan council meeting on Wednesday.

BUS PROPOSAL

Trustee Frumento objected to a suggestion of a bus for elementary school children who were within walking distance until sidewalks are built.

He said Genoa Bay Road and the old Island Highway are far more dangerous and if the pupils in one area are taken to schools, parents in other areas of the Cowichan school district can expect the same arrangement for their children.

The matter will be held in abeyance until the transportation committee recommends a decision.

Trainees Will Try Woodland

The wilderness of Vancouver Island will be tackled for four days beginning today by 21 officer trainees of Venture training school at CFB Esquimalt.

All of them Canadian Aircrew officer candidates, the young men will be trucked to a base camp 12 miles west of Duncan, then set off for three days of mountain hiking.

They will each carry a 50-pound pack containing food and survival equipment, a Canadian Forces spokesman said on Monday.

Expedition training brings out leadership qualities, he explained.

Great excuse for an off-season spree in Europe

Old photos can stir nostalgia, bringing you happy memories of familiar faces and places grown dim with the passing years... of family and home left behind in Britain or the Continent.

Or they can arouse your curiosity to know at first hand the ties of heritage... of distant relatives and the "old country".

Whichever the case, they can provide you with the best of excuses for an off-season visit to Britain and the Continent—and for a great holiday! Think of the fun of renewing family ties. Of exploring old haunts. Or of discovering for yourself the enchanting places you've always dreamed of, or heard so much about. Remember, Europe will be free of summer tourists. You'll be able to see it as it really is after the crowds have gone home. And, of course, prices will be at their lowest.

Air Canada fares will be at their lowest, too. In addition, the first-ever weekly Western Arrow nonstop flight from Vancouver to London in Fall/Winter as well as 7 other weekly flights to Britain and Continental Europe will make things easier still. Your travel agent can provide you with full details on these, as well as tour prices (Individual or Group Inclusive Tours) and all of Air Canada's services including Air Canada's "Fly Now—Pay Later" plan and "Extra Cities Plan".

He can also provide assistance in planning your trip to Britain or anywhere in Europe. Call him... or call Air Canada at 382-5144

Crash Victim's Birthday Wish:

I Wanted to Be Rescued Today

REDDING, Calif. (UPI) — Young Carla Oien made a birthday wish last spring in a makeshift diary huddled with her mother in the wreckage of a light plane on a snowclad peak. It never came true.

"Today is my 16th birthday," she printed in the diary. "I wanted to be rescued today."

That was 50 days after the March 11 crash of the plane piloted by her stepfather, Alvin Oien, 58. The poignant note was followed four days later by a final entry in the diary, on May 4:

"It's a bright and drippy, drippy day. We are completely soaked."

The diary and the skeletons

of Carla and her mother, Phyllis, were found scattered near the wreckage Sunday. No trace was found of Oien. The diary reported he had attempted to go for help.

A coroner's party set out in the rain Monday to seek Oien's remains.

The small, single-engine plane smashed into a five-foot-deep snowbank on the side of Bully Choo Mountain, 35 miles west of this northern California logging centre. The flight was from Portland, where Oien owned a hotel, to San Francisco to visit his son Alvin, Jr., 32, a Delta Airlines pilot.

The plane crashed 6,000 feet up the mountain and just over a mile from an unused dirt road — hidden under the snow.

The diary said the family saw only two days of sunshine during a spring of storms which hid the wreck from search planes. Snow was on the ground until June.

The first entry, on the day of the crash, said: "On leg of journey to Red Bluff (Calif.). Plane on left side in snowbank, 12:15 p.m. Fuselage broken. Door ajar. Windows on right side were broken as well as windshield."

The diary, with entries by both mother and daughter, then described the injuries suffered in the crash.

Al suffered a cut on the chin, three cuts on the forehead, a broken arm, crushed ribs on the right side, and "pain in his vertebrae."

Phyllis

Phyllis was "delirious one day," suffering a broken left arm, cuts of the right hand, a broken left ankle and many cuts and bruises, plus frost-bitten feet.

Five days after the crash, the diary said Oien left the crash scene.

"Al shouted OK. He crossed the gully. He was on his way for help."

A week later, an entry written by Mrs. Oien said: "Fear Al did not make it for help. Getting weak."

No other mention of Oien was made in the diary, kept in the back of an airman's guide in the Cessna 150.

Three days after the crash, Carla tried to walk through the snow but turned back.

"She returned because it was snowing and foggy and visibility," the diary noted dispassionately. "Her feet were frozen and she lost her shoes."

She tried again a short time before her stepfather went for help. The diary noted the snow was "too deep and frozen."

The diary said they melted snow for water but made only one reference to food — the

Sharp Spending Cut Soon

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Sharp will set the stage for a $1,000,000,000 cut in government spending in a belt-tightening message to Parliament Wednesday.

His speech, according to reliable sources here, will leave no doubt that, if this ruthless chopping is not enough, higher taxes will be the next step.

Chatterton

Housing Vote Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The first non-confidence motion in the minority Liberal government since the Commons resumed business a week ago will go to a vote tonight at the end of a two-day money-supply debate.

Moved Monday by Progressive-Conservative George Chatterton of Esquimalt-Saanich, the motion flays the government for raising the maximum interest rate for NHA mortgages to 8 1/2 per cent from 7 1/2 during "a national housing crisis."

As he put it forward, Finance Minister Sharp said the government will not remit the 11-per-cent federal sales tax on building materials in the immediate future, because "we can't afford that."

The tone will reflect serious doubts about the economy, caused by the fallout from the cost of the Vietnam war and U.S. reluctance to raise taxes to pay for it.

The consequence is higher costs and interest rates, felt in Canada and forcing the Canadian government to revise its projected spending.

During the summer, the cabinet worked out a $500,000,000 cut in government spending for the 1968-69 period.

This involved reductions in defence, postponement of the $100,000,000 "Pentagon" building, freezing of extra government money for housing, and delays in CBC capital projects.

NOT ENOUGH

But this cut turned out to be nowhere near enough.

This earlier set of cuts would have reduced the projected deficit for 1968-69 from $1,250,000,000, the largest in history, to $750,000,000, the estimated deficit this year.

When this set was complete, it became clear the U.S. situation was going to have a worse impact in Canada than expected.

The U.S. Congress was dragging its feet on tax increases demanded by President Johnson. And there was no sign of improvement in the Vietnam situation, no easing in the inflationary pressures on the U.S. economy.

SECOND ROUND

"We knew then we had to have a second round of cutting," an official said Monday night.

Sharp will announce specific measures that will be chopped. He will not touch medicare, which is scheduled to begin July 1 next year.

However, medicare is in the lap of the provinces. The federal government has only passed enabling legislation to help the provinces operate plans.

His speech may be interpreted by the provinces as an invitation to delay its introduction.

The second round of cuts would trim the deficit to between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000.

This would mean a balance in the government's "national" accounts.

This is the picture when the government includes money it has on hand from the old age security fund, the Canada pension plan, superannuation funds and other items not included in the budget.

Government sources pointed out it is not certain if ways can be found to reduce spending another $500,000,000.

When Fellow Needs Friend

It's a camera illusion, but British Prime Minister Wilson could have used friendly pat on head from Foreign Secretary Brown as 6,000 delegates opened Labor party convention

Monday in Scarborough, England. Chairman John Boyd attacked Wilson's economic policies, and group of delegates proposed Britain reverse its support of U.S. Vietnam policy — (AP)

St. Louis Series Favorite

BOSTON (AP) — Bookmakers Monday made St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 favorites and Boston Red Sox 7-5 underdogs for baseball's world series, which opens here at 10 a.m. PST Wednesday.

Starting pitchers will be St. Louis ace Bob Gibson, who was 13 and lost seven in the National League despite six weeks off with a broken leg, and Boston's Jose Santiago, 12-4. See also Page 10.

COLLEGE MENACED

By IAN STREET

A Vancouver Island regional college, without three school districts which opted out in last Saturday's vote, may not be a viable economic project, Education Minister Peterson indicated Monday.

The minister said he was disappointed three of the nine districts involved voted against participating in the project. He added education department officials will meet shortly with backers of the regional college scheme to discuss the next move. (See also Page 28.)

MORE INFORMATION

Mr. Peterson was asked whether the government was anxious to see the project proceed as quickly as possible.

He replied he wanted further information, which would only be forthcoming at the proposed meeting with college supporters, before offering any encouragement "one way or the other."

CHANGE IN SIZE

Mr. Peterson said: "I'm talking about the change in size of the area to be served. It has been reduced by the opting out of three districts and we want to know the full effect of this, whether it will still allow a viable, economic regional college."

The questions of how long it will take to get a college into operation, supposing it is found to be still viable, and whether the site should be shifted as a result of the vote are really up to the people of the area to decide, he said.

FINAL SAY

Local authorities must draw up plans and arrange a referendum to approve the necessary funds for building of a college. But the council of public instruction, which is the provincial cabinet, has the final say in whether the college goes ahead.

It came as a shock, Mr. Peterson indicated, that Courtenay turned down participation in the college. He said Alberni and Northern Vancouver Island had been expected to vote no.

Island North, he said, is out of commuting distance with the proposed site of the new college. Therefore it is just as easy for residents there to attend existing facilities in Vancouver or Victoria.

The people of Alberni also have made it clear in the past they objected to the proposed location of the regional college, Mr. Peterson added.

Yugoslavs Hold Eichmann Aide

THE HAGUE (UPI) — An aide to Adolf Eichmann who had been safe in Austria because of his Austrian citizenship was arrested Monday in Yugoslavia and may be sent to The Netherlands to answer war crimes charges.

The Netherlands justice ministry said it had been advised from Belgrade that Erich Rajakovic, 62, had been detained in connection with a Dutch request for extradition under an agreement with Yugoslavia.

Rajakovic is wanted on charges of helping Eichmann round up Dutch Jews for Nazi gas chambers. There was no indication why Rajakovic left Austria, where he was safe from extradition.

He served 30 months from 1963 to 1965 for an Austrian war crimes conviction and Jewish groups had been watching since then to see if he would leave Austria.

Army-Ousted Leader Arrested in Greece

ATHENS (Reuters) — The army-led Greek government Monday placed under house arrest Panayotis Canellopoulos, 64, the premier toppled by the army coup last April, who twice last week defied an order banning public statements.

Canellopoulos said the regime must restore political freedom quickly and its members must "rid the country of their presence" or Greece will be exposed to dangers that might destroy everything.

But Vote Stands

Hanoi Spurns LBJ, Nun Fiery Suicide

SAIGON (Reuters) — North Vietnam, in a broadcast heard here, today rejected President Johnson's offer Friday to talk peace immediately with Ho Chi Minh.

In theory but not in actuality the assemblymen nullified all the votes from 2,724 of the 8,824 polling places used Sept. 3—a total of 1,449,647 votes—for such reasons as discrepancies in totals on tally sheets, illegal erasures and intentionally incorrect addition.

The upshot was that Thieu lost about 433,000 of his original 1,650,000 votes. But the runner-up, Truong Dinh Dzu, lost even more; his 817,000 votes were reduced to 228,300.

In all, 4,700,000 votes were

Royal Navy Not Quite Sure

LONDON (CP) — Canada is reported to be designing a new generation of submarine detection electronics in the hope of landing a big new contract.

HMCS Chaudiere sailed from Halifax Monday bound for the west coast where it will undergo conversion to the equipment mentioned in this article. HMCS Columbia, already here, and another unnamed Esquimaux class destroyer are slated for the same conversion.

tract with the Royal Navy but an informant said Monday stiff competition appears to be developing from the United States.

He suggested, however, that a decision on the competing designs is still about a year away.

The Royal Navy said it is fitting at least 15 of its frigates with existing Canadian equipment known as variable depth sonar but still hasn't made up its mind on equipment for another 11.

A navy spokesman estimated the cost of the sonar for each ship at about $750,000. He said the navy is confident some "logistics difficulties" in fitting the equipment can be overcome with the establishment of production and repair facilities in Britain.

The Sunday Telegraph said the sonar, to help a ship detect submarines sheltering under warm water which repels signals sent out by ordinary detectors, showed "indifferent performance" and that an alternative sonar was planned.

A Canadian official here said the report was inaccurate; that the equipment, produced by a Canadian subsidiary of the British EMI Company at Dartmouth, N.S., was the best available.

However, an informant added that a new generation of sonar is under design at Dartmouth and the Royal Navy also is looking at a competitive U.S. design. Costs as well as performance would affect the decision.

Burton Gives Liz Flying Elizabeth

PORTO CONTE, Sardinia (AP) — Actor Richard Burton gave actress-wife Elizabeth Taylor a little surprise gift Monday—a $1,000,000, 10-passenger jet plane that he named Elizabeth. The twin-engine plane joins two Rolls Royces and a 110-foot ocean-going yacht in the Burtons' private transport fleet.
